they were not responsible for the enforcement of the street railway franchise, but it is probable they have only shifted the responsibility until the next meeting of council when Mayor Davidson will say to them, "I have done my duty, now you do yours."

Last night the matter was brought up by Nice who said: "I would like to know who is responsible for the enforcement of the street railway franchise, and would like to have the opinion of the solicitor on the question."

Solicitor Gaston said it was the duty of the mayor as he was the executive officer of the city, and that he could find no law making it encumbent on council to enforce any law they have passed. He referred to section 1746, R. S. O., which said it shall be the specific duty of the mayor to see that all ordinances, by-laws and resolutions passed by council are enforced. He said it was the business of council to grant the franchise, but it was the duty of the mayor to see that they are faithfully obeyed and was with council. After the mayor ply the remedy. Police business was good last night and two victims faced the mayor this morning and two more are due for a call this afternoon.

Albert Clendenning filled up on bad whisky yesterday and last evening took the steps of a Franklin street house for a sleeping place. Officer Mahony chanced along that way and Clendenning was given a ride to city hall. This morning Mayor Davidson fined him $5 60 and his brother appeared at city hall and went security for his fine.

A few days ago May Williams called at the mayor's office and made complaint against Joseph Brighouse, Henry Sheckler and Fred Smith. She claimed that they were disorderly on a shanty boat on January 20. She also stated that they used all kinds of bad language and made things very unpleasant for the neighbors. Brighouse appeared at city hall yesterday and was fined $5 60. The other two members of the party will call on the mayor today.

Said Garen, against whom a charge of assault and battery was made yesterday, was fined $9 60.

VEHICLE ORDINANCE KILLED

Three Members Voted Against the Ordinance Becoming a Law In the City.

A NUMBER OF MINOR MATTERS

Council met in regular session last night with all members present except Arnold and Peach.

The ordinance to license vehicles was placed on its third reading. Council held a long running discussion on the ordinance and a vote was taken resulting in a defeat for the ordinance, Nice. McLane and Heddleston voting Chairman McLane reported that the bill of the Ceramic Light company had not been settled. He spoke of a meeting with a representative of the company, and said the committee had agreed to give the company $500, and no agreement had been reached.

Heddleston stated that Anderson had told him any member of his company would make affidavit that the present lights were 450 watts, or equal to 2,000 candle power.

Solicitor Gaston said if the city didn't pay the bill they would be sued, and then no person could swear that the city wasn't getting the candle power they contracted for. He advised paying the bill.

Heddleston stated that Manager Healy had told him 12 new lights would soon be here and they were 500 watts.

McLane said he didn't think that the city was getting what they contracted for when a man had to light a match under one of them in order to tell what time it was.

The bill for $591 16 was then placed on the pay roll by a unanimous vote.

The ordinance to improve Pennsylvania avenue from a point in front of lot 1589 to the East End public school building was passed under a suspension of the rules.

The ordinance to improve Calcutta road from Wall street to McKinnon avenue was read and before it was finished Smith moved it be changed from Wall street to the north end of Jennings avenue. Smith said if it was not improved as he asked north end people would refuse to pay.

Nice remarked that they would get no more and would pay for what they had got

The ordinance wasn't changed and went over to its second reading.

Residents of Gardendale asked that a grade be established on Smithfield street from Gardendale avenue to Line alley. An ordinance establishing the grade will be prepared.

An ordinance to provide for lighting the tracks of the Pennsylvania company in the city limits by electric, gas or gasoline lamps was introduced by D. M. McLane. McLane moved that the rules be suspended, but before it could be seconded McHenry said he would object to ordinance passing with gas or gasoline lights attached to it. The words gas or gasoline were stricken out and the ordinance was passed under a suspension

The committee appointed to investigate the claims of O. C. Vodrey and the Globe Pottery company for land used by the city in opening Pennsylvania avenue recommended that the Globe Pottery company be given $659 31 and Vodrey the amount of his assessments. The report was accepted and the amount ordered paid.

HON. R. W. TAYLOR.

The Toledo Blade Prints a Brief History of His Public

The Toledo Blade has the following in regard to Hon. R. W. Tayler:

Robert Walker Tayler is an Ohio congressman. He comes from President McKinley's district. He made a name for himself last winter-not only by representing the President's district, but by leading the fight in the house against one Roberts, of Utah. Newspaper readers will remember that contest. Tayler looks young, much younger than 48. He was born in Youngstown and was graduated at Western Reserve college in 1872. His face is smooth, except that he wears Burnsides, just close cropped ones that do not reach to the bottom of his ears. Nose glasses give him a literary air. He has taught school and was superintendent of the Lisbon schools. Then he became editor of a Lisbon newspaper. Subsequently he was admitted to the bar. When he became a lawyet he got an itching for office and was elected prosecutor of Columbiana county. Then he was sent to congress. He commenced his labors as a national legislator in the Fifty-fourth congress, was re-elected to the Fiftyfifth, of course serving in the Fiftysixth, and his constituents in November voted to send him back to the Fifty-seventh.

OCCURRED IN THE VICINITY OF HELANA YESTERDAY.

Both Parties to the Battle Were Somewhat Disfigured When it Ended.

A fight occurred in the vicinity of the Helana school house last evening between a young man named Brunson. from the city, and an East End man.

The pair had at one time worked together in one of the river potteries and the East End man had lost a good situation, blaming Brunson for being in some way responsible for the discharge. He vowed at the time to get even with his enemy, and last night being their first meeting since the occurrence, they had it out. Honors were about evenly divided, although the East End man had fewer evidences of the fight upon his face, having hit his antagonist in the mouth several times, cutting his lip in three places.

No arrests were made and but few saw the affair, although it continued for some time. Brunson came to town almost immediately.

STEEL NEGLECTED SOME.

Comparatively Little Done With Them. Some Other Points of the Stock Market.

New York, Jan. 23.-Brokers in a number of stocks Friday admitted the receipt of orders to make first prices as high as possible. This is a familiar device of traders who have gone long of stocks during a rise on one day, to get the greatest possible benefit from the relapse after the opening in prices of the stocks which were most palpably manipulated on Monday disclosed the operations of St. Paul and Northern Pacific were conspicuously effected in this way, the former opening up 134 and the latter rising almost as much and then running off again to near Monday night's level. Apparently there was a speculative element who feared the possibility of selling induced by the queen's death. After that event was reported there was a pause in the activity of the market. Shortly afterwards room traders set to work to bid up prices again. They lifted St. Paul an extreme 41/2 over Monday night, Northern Pacific 25%. and the grangers, Pacifics, trunk lines and more prominent stocks generally from 1 to 2 points. The same traders were active in Sugar all day, making the extreme advance 21/2. On the other hand, the sensational movement in Missouri Pacific was brought to a sudden stop after a 3-point jump at the opening, and the Wabash stocks also fell back. The extreme decline in Missouri Pacific was 7½ and it closed at a net loss of 31/6. Missouri Pacific was in urgent demand in the loan crowd and Miss Anna Grove Grove, aged 62 commanded as high as 1/2 per cent years, died at the Massillon State hos- premium for use by the shorts. The level of prices at the close was, however, substantially higher than Monday, and the undertone of the market during the day was steady.

Greasing the Wheels.

A Russian paper gives an interesting insight into the way they do things on the Siberian railway.

A merchant recently sent a carload of fruit from Irkutsk to Chita. The railway charges were 170 rubles, but the tips to railway officials amounted to 120 rubles more.

Tipping, or "greasing," as it is called 'n Siberia, is a tax from which no patron of the railway is exempt.

In the case mentioned the first station master told the merchant that the loaded car was "sick," or disabled, and would have to be side tracked for repairs.

"How long will it take to make the repairs?" the merchant asked. "Oh, a week at least," was the answer.

The merchant started, for a week's and, besides, it was ordered for immediate delivery. But when the fruit dealer had slipped 10 or 15 rubles into the official's hand the tatter found that than 4,000 threads united.

the car was well enough to travel. At the next station the car fell i! in the same manner, and this process was repeated every time the train stopped.

Local merchants have become used to this "greasing" business and simply add the amount to the price of their wares, so that the consumer pays the freight and the tips as well.

Money In Soiled Linen.

"It is astonishing how careless peo ple are about sending clothes to a laundry without first searching them for money and jewelry," said the manager of a laundry the other day. "Yesterday a woman sent a bundle of dresses here, and in the pocket of one was $190 in bills. We never search clothing for valuables. The dresses were put in the washing machine, soap and water put in, and after the machine had been running half an hour it was opened, and the man in charge was astonished to see paper money floating around on the water. The bills had in some manner worked out of the pocket of the dress, and, strange to say, not one of them was torn. We ran the money through the drying machine and then froned each bill carefully. After we got through you could not have told that the money had been in a laundry washing machine for half an hour. We sent for the woman, and when she came to the laundry she had not yet missed her money.

"Not long ago a man sent some shirts to our laundry from the bosom of one of which he forgot to remove a diamond stud worth $150. Our people did not see the diamond, and we did not find it until he called us up and made known his loss. Then I put my men to searching, and we found the diamond in the catch basin in the sewer."-New York Mail and Express.

Reading Matter For the Duke.

There was an amusing incident in connection with the late Duke of Edinburgh's Australian tour. He accepted an invitation to visit a wealthy squatter, on whose estate excellent shooting was to be had. The squatter was a self made man, entirely unincumbered with book learning and absolutely innocent of reading tastes. In making preparations for the duke's visit it was suddenly discovered that the furnishing of the library had been completely overlooked. There was no time to be lost, and so the squatter sat down and dispatched the following telegram to the leading Melbourne bookseller: "Send one ton of books. Immediate delivery."

The bookseller was staggered at the receipt of such a wholesale and unconventional order, but as the signature of the sender would be honored by any Melbourne bank on a check for six figures he kept his staff working on the job until the small hours of the morning, and the ton of miscellaneous literature was happily shelved before the arrival of the duke.-London Chronicle.

Novel Chinese Clock.

It must be conceded that in some qualities of primitive but practical resourcefulness the Chinese are ahead of most civilized nations. All travelers agree that if in a district where clocks and watches are unknown you ask a Chinaman the time of day he will, if well disposed, at once proceed to ambuscade and capture the household cat, and after pushing up the lids and looking for a moment into its eyes he will tell the time with astonishing accuracy.

The explanation is a simple physiological one. The pupils of the cat's eyes constantly contract until midday, when they become like a fine line, as thin as a hair, drawn perpendicularly across the eyes. After 12 they begin again to dilate. It is to be hoped that if the practice is ever introduced into this country watches and clocks will continue to be made, as there will probably be many who will not care to run after a cat whenever they want to know the hour or who may fear some danger to their own eges from too close an examination of hers.

A Russian paper gives an interesting insight into the way they do things on the Siberian railway.

A merchant recently sent a carload of fruit from Irkutsk to Chita. The railway charges were 170 rubles, but the tips to railway officials amounted to 120 rubles more.

Tipping, or "greasing," as it is called n Siberia, is a tax from which no patron of the railway is exempt.

In the case mentioned the first station master told the merchant that the loaded car was "sick," or disabled, and would have to be side tracked for repairs.

in the same manner, and this process was repeated every time the train stopped.

Local merchants have become used to this "greasing" business and simply add the amount to the price of their wares, so that the consumer pays the freight and the tips as well.

Money in Soiled Linen.

"It is astonishing how careless peo ple are about sending clothes to a laundry without first searching them for money and jewelry," said the manager of a laundry the other day. "Yesterday a woman sent a bundle of dresses here, and in the pocket of one was $190 in bills. We never search clothing for valuables. The dresses were put in the washing machine, soap and water put in, and after the machine had been running half an hour it was opened, and the man in charge was astonished to see paper money floating around on the water. The bills had in some manner worked out of the pocket of the dress, and, strange to say, not one of them was torn. We ran the money through the drying machine and then ironed each bill carefully. After we got through you could not have told that the money had been in a laundry washing machine for half an hour. We sent for the woman, and when she came to the laundry she had not yet missed her money.

"Not long ago a man sent some shirts to our laundry from the bosom of one of which he forgot to remove a diamond stud worth $150. Our people did not see the diamond, and we did not find it until he called us up and made known his loss. Then I put my men to searching, and we found the diamond in the catch basin in the sewer."-New York Mail and Express.

Reading Matter For the Duke.

There was an amusing incident in connection with the late Duke of Edinburgh's Australian tour. He accepted an invitation to visit a wealthy squatter, on whose estate excellent shooting was to be had. The squatter was a self made man, entirely unincumbered with book learning and absolutely innocent of reading tastes. In making preparations for the duke's visit it was suddenly discovered that the furnishing of the library had been completely overlooked. There was no time to be lost, and so the squatter sat down and dispatched the following telegram to the leading Melbourne bookseller: "Send one ton of books. Immediate delivery."

The bookseller was staggered at the receipt of such a wholesale and unconventional order, but as the signature of the sender would be honored by any Melbourne bank on a check for six figures he kept his staff working on the job until the small hours of the morning, and the ton of miscellaneous literature was happily shelved before the arrival of the duke.-London Chronicle.

All the threads, to the amount of 1,000 to each mass, join together when they come out and make the single thread with which the spider spins its web, so that what we call a spider's thread consists of more than 4,000 threads united.

Novel Chinese Clock.

It must be conceded that in some qualities of primitive but practical resourcefulness the Chinese are ahead of most civilized nations. All travelers agree that if in a district where clocks and watches are unknown you ask a Chinaman the time of day he will, if well disposed, at once proceed to ambuscade and capture the household cat, and after pushing up the lids and looking for a moment into its eyes he will tell the time with astonishing accuracy.

The explanation is a simple physiological one. The pupils of the cat's eyes constantly contract until midday, when they become like a fine line, as thin as a hair, drawn perpendicularly across the eyes. After 12 they begin again to dilate. It is to be hoped that if the practice is ever introduced into this country watches and clocks will continue to be made, as there will probably be many who will not care to run after a cat whenever they want to know the hour or who may fear some danger to their own eges from too close an examination of hers.

EAST END.

A FIGHT

OCCURRED IN THE VICINITY OF HELANA YESTERDAY.

Both Parties to the Battle Were Somewhat Disfigured When it Ended.

A fight occurred in the vicinity of the Helana school house last evening between a young man named Brunson, from the city, and an East End man.

The pair had at one time worked together in one of the river potteries and the East End man had lost a good situation, blaming Brunson for being in some way responsible for the discharge. He vowed at the time to get even with his enemy, and last night being their first meeting since the occurrence, they had it out. Honors were about evenly divided, although the East End man had fewer evidences of the fight upon his face, having hit his antagonist in the mouth several times, cutting his lip in three places.

No arrests were made and but few saw the affair, although it continued for some time. Brunson came to town almost immediately.

THEY MISBEHAVE.

A Number of Young Men Are Disorderly in the East End.

Some of the residents of the East End have been greatly annoyed lately by the action of a number of men who reside down town and work in the potteries at this end of town.

The parties mentioned seem to think they are entitled to a great deal more latitude in their conduct than in the city proper, and curse and swear in a manner that is awful to

A few evenings ago a crowd of them alighted at the Mulberry street crossing and their conduct was disorderly in the extreme. They threw stones at various objects and their curses could be heard for several squares.

Unless a stop is put to the practice complaint will be made to the authorities and an example made of some

STEEL NEGLECTED SOME.

Comparatively Little Done With Them. Some Other Points of the Stock Market.

New York, Jan. 23.-Brokers in a number of stocks Friday admitted the receipt of orders to make first prices as high as possible. This is a familiar device of traders who have gone long of stocks during a rise on one day, to get the greatest possible benefit from the relapse after the opening in prices of the stocks which were most palpably manipulated on Monday disclosed the operations of this class. St. Paul and Northern Pacific were conspicuously effected in and then running off again to near Monday night's level. Apparently there was a speculative element who feared the possibility of selling induced by the queen's death. After that event was reported there was a pause in the activity of the market. Shortly afterwards room traders set to work to bid up prices again. They lifted St. Paul an extreme 41/2 over Monday night, Northern Pacific 2%. and the grangers, Pacifics, trunk lines and more prominent stocks generally from 1 to 2 points. The same traders were active in Sugar all day, making the extreme advance 21/8. On the other hand, the sensational movement in Missouri Pacific was brought to a sudden stop after a 3-point jump at the opening, and the Wabash stocks

The extreme decline in Missouri Pacific was 7½ and it closed at a net loss of 3½. Missouri Pacific was in urgent demand in the loan crowd and Miss Anna Grove Grove, aged 62 commanded as high as ½ per cent premium for use by the shorts. Amalgamated Copper again moved widely, jumping nearly 3 points at the opening and then falling back 3%. The steel stocks were comparatively ing been among the first sent from neglected, but the undertone was weak, in spite of the less threatening utterances authorized by trade magnates. Federal steel fell away 25% and other members of the group from 1 to 11/2, after small opening advices. The late notable rise was not well maintained, especially in the stocks which were bid up most aggressively. and the closing was active and rather easy below the best. The level of prices at the close was, however, substantially higher than Monday, and the undertone of the market during

APPRECIATED.

This office, newspaper and job combined, has been running to the limit of late, and we find it difficult to meet the demand made upon our various departments. This is the very best evidence possible to produce that the citizens of East Liverpool are lovers of fair play, and that they take no stock in the efforts of unfair and unjust and malicious and untruthful parties to injure the News Review by and through the instrumentality of lying tongues and irresponsible publications.

TO ALL UNIONISTS.

We mean all true unionists, men who live up to the established rules of unionism, as made for their control, and who believe in a fair day's work for a fair day's pay. There is no pressmen's union in East Liverpool. The men who claim to be pressmen in this city, and who claim to be working under authority granted them by Pittsburg union, are evidently misled or altogether untruthful or unreliable. The label now published in the center of the first page of the News Review is the only legal label controlling the craft in Pittsburg. Further, the socalled pressmen's label, now being used by some persons in this city who call themselves pressmen, has been for $24,000. given out to men who are not pressmen at all. Further, we state to the public that the so-called pressmen of this city, using an obsolete and illegal label, have broken every rule which is made and printed and published for their control.

THE SALOON.

It is a curse to any community. It is a curse to any and every family. It is a curse to the workingman, mechanic, merchant, business and professional man. It is a curse to fathers and mothers. It is a curse to your sons. It is a curse to wives and children. It is worse than a highway robber. It destroys everything holy, righteous and clean. It panders to crime, sin, lust, anger, meanness, and every form of vice. It is a disgrace to East Liverpool and to the nation at large. No man who loves humanity can possibly be engaged in the business. No man who loves and worships God aright can possibly be engaged in the saloon business. It is the worst enemy to prosperity that this nation has ever known. THE GOOD QUEEN.

The above title is the grandest that can be accorded to the memory of Queen." And being a good queen, it naturally follows that she was a good woman-and no grander appellation can be bestowed upon any member of the human race. And history further says that she was a Christian woman. Think of it. A good Christian woman, God bless all such, as they are a power to any nation-among any people. Queen Victoria was essentially a lovable woman. She has had the respect and esteem and love of not only the British nation, but of the whole civilized world. She was essentially a lover of home and home ties. She was intensely devoted to her husband and to her children. She loved, very dearly, the people over whom she had been placed as ruler, and her great heart form. THE MAN WITH A CLAIM.

A Pathetic Figure Who Is Regularly Snubbed at Town Meetings.

The most pathetic figure at a town meeting is the man with a claim. The man who has the claim or grievance goes to the selectmen each spring and has them put an article in the warrant bringing this matter up. Some years calling upon or addressing J. K. Dillon, he goes into town meeting himself and District Passenger Agent, Room 306, urges his claim. In other years for the sake of variety he will hire some of the local lawyers to present the matter in the best manner possible. Usually the man is listened to, though the whole thing is horribly familiar to every voter in the town.

Then, when all the oratory has been spilled into their ears, some long eared man from the back districts will rise and will drawl with a grin:

"Move we pass over that article," and forthwith the article is passed over with a whoop. And the man is around next year as usual. It is a curious thing, but the average town appears always ready to repudiate these matters of long standing. I have heard voters admit that certain claims against their town were perfectly legitimate and perhaps ought to be paid, but they are of the coterie that regularly votes against granting the appeal of the petitioners.

Oh, well, it's "an old matter," and the town is irritated by the persistence of the man who keeps coming to claim his own. When a town gets set in that direction, there is no repudiation so heartless and so conscienceless as that which marks its action. You see, the blame is so equally divided. Refusing to pay honest debts is treated as a joke. Even the man who at last with awakened conscience gets up and urges his fellow citizens to do the right thing and pay the bill is smiled away as a chap that means well, but doesn't know what he is talking about.-Lewiston Journal.

SABBATH DESECRATION.

Don't you dare to be guilty of desecrating the Sabbath, in any manner or form. You say that you believe in God and in his justice. Be careful; very careful. Remember that God commands you to remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. God will not be trifled with. His mercy wants to help you. Don't reject it. Get away from Sabbath desecration or take the awful consequences.

APPRECIATED.

This office, newspaper and job combined, has been running to the limit of late, and we find it difficult to meet the demand made upon our various departments. This is the very best evidence possible to produce that the citizens of East Liverpool are lovers of fair play, and that they take no stock in the efforts of unfair and unjust and malicious and untruthful . parties to injure the News Review by and through the instrumentality of lying tongues and irresponsible publications.

We mean all true unionists, men who live up to the established rules of unionism, as made for their control, and who believe in a fair day's work for a fair day's pay. There is no pressmen's union in East Liverpool. The men who claim to be pressmen in this city, and who claim to be working under authority granted them by Pittsburg union, are evidently misled or altogether untruthful or unreliable. The label now published in the center of the first page of the News Review is the only legal label controlling the craft in Pittsburg. Further, the socalled pressmen's label, now being used by some persons in this city who call themselves pressmen, has been given out to men who are not pressmen at all. Further, we state to the public that the so-called pressmen of this city, using an obsolete and illegal label, have broken every rule which is made and printed and published for their control.

THE SALOON.

It is a curse to any community. It is a curse to any and every family. It is a curse to the workingman, mechanic, merchant, business and professional man. It is a curse to fathers and mothers. It is a curse to your sons. It is a curse to wives and children. It is worse than a highway robber. It destroys everything holy, righteous and clean. It panders to crime, sin, lust, anger, meanness, and every form of vice. It is a disgrace to East Liverpool and to the nation at large. No man who loves humanity can possibly be engaged in the business. No man who loves and worships God aright can possibly be engaged in the saloon business. It is the worst enemy to prosperity that this nation has ever known. It ought to die. Christian men and women of East Liverpool; lovers of clean and this common enemy of God and humanity. God will surely hold you responsible. You cannot be neutral. You must be for or against. There is $5 00 no middle ground. Your own man-1 25 hood or womanhood will compel you 10 to acknowledge this. The saloon and liquor traffic ought to die.

THE GOOD QUEEN.

The above title is the grandest that can be accorded to the memory of Queen Victoria. History demonstrates the fact that she was truly "A Good Queen." And being a good queen, it naturally follows that she was a good woman-and no grander appellation can be bestowed upon any member of the human race. And history further says that she was a Christian woman. Think of it. A good Christian woman. God bless all such, as they are a power to any nation-among any people. Queen Victoria was essentially a lovable woman. She has had the respect and esteem and love of not only the British nation, but of the whole civilized world. She was essentially a lover of home and home ties. She was intensely devoted to her husband and to her children. She loved, very dearly, the people over whom she had been placed as ruler, and her great heart bled in anguish over the lives that were sacrificed in the Transvaal. She lived to a grand old age. The civilized world holds her memory dear. God grant that she will have an inheritance "in the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens;" in a home and a kingdom compared with which the British empire, in all its earthly grandeur and . magnificence, sinks into utter insignificance.

Former Superintendent Flood, of the East Liverpool and Rock Springs street railway, who leaves this evening for Oregon, was summoned to the barn at noon today, where a surprise ted against God. of an offense which is was in store for him.

Every employe of the line was present and when everything was in readiness Robert J. The present was tendered as a token of respect and esteem in which every employe of the company have always held the gentleman, and reminding him that his many acts of kindness had not been his abode in his new house, and I start forgotten by them.

Mr. Scadden's contract expires in July, and it is thought when the time comes they will be compelled to grant the work to that gentleman, as it is hardly likely any other bids will be submitted.

Time as a Sculptor.

A portrait traced by nature on a woman's tombstone, says The Scots Pictorial, has recently been discovered in Giver of all good. Jedburgh graveyard, near the famous abbey. The stone was erected in 1798 by a worthy bailie of Jethart to the memory of his wife, Alison Renwick. The slow finger of time has worn away most of the facing on the front of the stone, and part of it is overgrown with moss, which has outlined the features. Local opinion favors the view that the face is a likeness of the good old lady who sleeps beneath, a theory which has at least the merit of being difficult of disproof, since no one living can possibly have seen her.

Judged by His Chosen Work,

The character of one's work is not determined altogether by its social status. Whatever is necessary is honorable. The mind worker and the physical worker meet upon the same platform. The hand and the brain are always in partnership. One's ability to do tests the divinity of his call. No one was ever called to preach who cannot learn how. Preaching and plowing go on within the same fences. Sometimes we get confused in our missions. We turn the wrong furrows, and because of this turn short ones. A successful plowman and a successful preacher get to the end of their furrows at the same time. Success is always determined by the triumph of one's own vocation. The minister who fails as a preacher is a total failure. He may write books or make fortunes, but the ministerial scales are the ones in which society will weigh him. So with every vocation.-Presbyterian Journal.

Confession Before Conversion.

I never knew any man to be converted until he confessed. Cain felt bad enough over his sins, but he did not confess. Saul was greatly tormented in his mind, but he went to the witch of Endor rather than to the Lord. Judas felt so bad over the betrayal of his Master that he went out and hanged himself, but he did not confess-that is, he did not confess to God. He came back and confessed to the priests, saying, "I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood." It was of no use to confess to them. They could not forgive him. What he should have done was to confess to God, but instead of that he went right away and hanged himself.-Moody.

Coming to Love People.

We come to love people through what we do for them rather than through what they do for us. God has gone far beyond our thanking in what He has done for us, but we take His gifts as a matter of course until He can induce us to do something for Him.

This is said to refresh the woodchuck, and, as for the boy, it toughens his muscles as no compulsory labor could do, and it cultivates patience, hope and persistency. JAMES FLOOD

PRESENTED WITH A HANDSOME GOLD BAND RING

By the Rock Springs Street Railway Employes As a Token of Their Esteem.

Former Superintendent Flood, of the East Liverpool and Rock Springs street railway, who leaves this evening for Oregon, was summoned to the barn at noon today, where a surprise was in store for him.

Every employe of the line was present and when everything was in readiness Robert J. McElravy, the new superintendent, in a very neat speech presented Mr. Flood with a handsome heavy gold band monogram ring, on the inside of which was inscribed, "Our Superintendent." The present was tendered as a token of respect and esteem in which every employe of the company have always held the gentleman, and reminding him that his many acts of kindness had not been forgotten by them.

It was some little time before Mr. Flood recovered sufficiently to reply, which he did in a fitting manner.

The Last Proposition of William Scadden to Carry Mail Has Been Rejected.

It is now evident that the postoffice department at Washington are not satisfled with the second proposition made by William Scadden for carrying the mail to East Liverpool, as today a document was received at the Mercer postoffice asking for bids for the task.

Mr. Scadden's contract expires in July, and it is thought when the time comes they will be compelled to grant the work to that gentleman, as it is hardly likely any other bids will be submitted.

Missing the Mark.

There is, moreover, a mark which vastly transcends these petty bylaws and "do's" and "don'ts" of men. though it may include some of them, and that is the law of Sinaitic holiness, the pure prescription of the absolutely righteous commandment of Jehovah. When now It is man's little mark that is missed. we call it "bad form" or a "great mistake" or perhaps a misdemeanor, which is the word of the statute books. But when it is God's great mark of holiness that is missed there is no term for it but that little, awful monosyllable "sin," compact with infinite terrors, fraught with endless consequences. which is the word of the Bible. Sin brings in the idea of a wrong committed against God, of an offense which is not a contempt of court in the earthly sense, but which strikes at heaven, a crime against the Creator, a failure to attain the goal of that perfection on which God rightfully insists.-Observ-

Judged by His Chosen Work.

The character of one's work is not determined altogether by its social status. Whatever is necessary is bonorable. The mind worker and the physical worker meet upon the same platform. The hand and the brain are always in partnership. One's ability to do tests the divinity of his call. No one was ever called to preach who cannot learn how. Preaching and plowing go on within the same fences. Sometimes we get confused in our missions. We turn the wrong furrows, and because of this turn short ones. A successful plowman and a successful preacher get to the end of their furrows at the same time. Success is always determined by the triumph of one's own vocation. The minister who fails as a preacher is a total failure. He may write books or make fortunes, but the ministerial scales are the ones in which society will weigh him. So with every vocation.-Presbyterian Journal.

Confession Before Conversion.

I never knew any man to be converted until be confessed. Cain felt bad enough over his sins, but he did not confess. Saul was greatly tormented mine, a farmer and his buxom wife, in his mind, but he went to the witch who live within a few yards of Greeba of Endor rather than to the Lord. Judas felt so bad over the betraval of his Master that he went out and hanged himself, but he did not confess-that is, he did not confess to God. He came back and confessed to the priests, saying, "I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood." It was of no use to confess to them. They could not forgive him. What he should have done was to confess to God, but instead of that he went right away and hanged himself.-Moody.

Coming to Love People.

We come to love people through what we do for them rather than through what they do for us. God has gone far beyond our thanking in what He has done for us, but we take His gifts as a matter of course until He can induce us to do something for Him.

This is why He throws on us the burden of working where He might have wrought and giving where He might have given. It is for our sakes that we thereby may learn to love the Doer and Giver of all good.

This is said to refresh the woodchuck, and, as for the boy, it toughens his muscles as no compulsory labor could do, and it cultivates patience, hope and persistency. Given a good brook, an ample hole and an industrious boy, a full day's work on the outside and a complacent woodchuck on the inside may be safely guaranteed.-Hartford Courant.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 23.-Queen Victoria is dead and Edward VII. reigns. The event took place quietly, upon the anniversary of she death of Queen Victoria's father, the Duke of Kent.

The end of the queen's earthly career came in a simply furnished woom in Osborne house. In 1837 she began to rule over England.

Number of Relatives With Her.

With bowed heads the imperious ruler of the German empire and the man who is now king of England, the woman who has succeeded to the title of queen, the princes and princesses, and those of s than royal designation listened the bishop's ceaseless prayer.

The bishop continued his intercession. One of the younger children asked a question in shrill, childish creble and was immediately silenced. The women of this royal family sobbed faintly and the men shuffled aneasily

She apparently suffered no pain. The body of Queen Victoria was embaimed and will probably be taken to Windsor Saturday. The coffin arrived tast evening from London. Monday afternoon she asked that brought to her bedside.

An incident characteristic of the queen's solicitude for others occurred several days ago, when, in one of the intervals of consciousness, she sum moded strength to suggest to her dressers, who had been acting as nurses, to take the opportunity of getting some fresh air.

Recognized Son and Nephew.

It was feared that the queen was dving about 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and carriages were sent to Osborne cottage and the rectory to bring all the princes and princesses and the bishop of Winchester to the bedside. It seemed then very near the end. but, when things looked the worst. the queen had another rally, due to kind Providence, opened her and recognized the Prince of Wales. the princess and Emperor William. She asked to see one of her faithful servants, a member of the household. He hastened to the room, but before he got there the queen had

For several weeks the queen had been failing. On Monday week she summoned Lord Roberts and asked him some very searching questions regarding the war in South Africa. On Tuesday week she went for a drive, but was visibly effected. On Wednesday of last week she suffered a paralytic stroke, accompanied by intense physical weakness. It was her first illness in all her 81 years. and she would not admit it. Then her condition grew so serious that. against her wishes, the family were summoned. When they arrived her reason had practically succumbed to paralysis and weakness.

Some Events of Her Last Days.

The events of the last few days, described in the bulletins, are too fresh to need repetition. At the lodge gates the watchers waited nervous-Suddenly along the drive from the house came a horseman, who cried, "The queen is dead," as he dashed through the crowds.

Then down the hillside rushed a myriad of messengers, passing the fateful bulletin from one to another. Soon the surrounding country knew that a king ruled over Great Britain. The local inhabitants walked as if in a dream through the streets of Cowes. but they didn't hesitate to stop to

The cold was intense, and a few favored ones sought shelter in the royal lodge, just inside, where they waited in absolute silence. The telephone bell rang at about 7:04 p. m., but before a royal servant had time to take the message the chief of the queen's police emerged from the darkness and, with bared head, said:

On their arrival at Cowes the correspondents found the news had been known both at East and West Cowes also 15 minutes before it had been announced to those in waiting at the gates of Osborne house. Sorrowing crowds were already in the streets discussing her majesty's death.

Probable Formalities of Proclamation.

At the offices of the lord chamberlain, at St. James' palace; of the city remembrancer, at the Guild hall, and at the college of Heralds, the officials were busy Tuesday, even before the death of the queen was announced, preparing for the formalities which will attend the proclaiming of a new ruler of the United Kingdom and India. All the ancient Gaettes, court circulars and other papers which describe the ceremonial of 1837 had been taken from the libraries, that the officials may familiarize themselves with the forms of pageantry whereby a sovereign is proclaimed. The city remembancer said Tuesday night:

"It will depend on the pleasure of the new monarch to decide how far the ancient customs will be modified to suit the modern methods, but in a country where precedents are so firmly adhered to as England, it may be anticipated tha we shall follow closely on the acts which prevailed when the queen ascended the throne. The privy council, which is a very large body, will meet at once at St. James palace, where the form of proclamation declaring that 'we.' etc., 'with one voice and consent of tongue and heart declare and proclaim the high mighty. Prince Albert Edward.' etc., who, by the death of the monarch, has become our only lawful and rightful liege,' etc.

Give New Title to King.

"This proclamation will give the new title the king may assume, but this is not yet announced to us. The proclamation will then be sent to the Heralds college and the following day the earl marshal, the Garter king at arms, the Heralds pursuivants and other officials, the college members, with the household troops, will proceed from the palace, clad in their splendid surcoats, and proceed to Trafalgar square. There the king-atarms will halt, command silence and read the proclamation. Proceeding down the Strand to Temple Bar, a halt will again be made, to demand an entrance into the city to proclaim the king. There the lord mayor, sheriffs in their state carriages, will form mittee on privileges and elections of a great procession, and when the the senate, favorably reported a conearl marshal's party comes just within the city boundary the proclamation two houses of congress assemble in city. will he read again and the procession will pass down Ludgate hill and Cheapside to the Royal Exchange, where similar ceremonies will close vote cast for president and vice presi-the spectacle." the spectacle."

SADNESS IN GERMANY.

Their Burden Increased by the Illness of the Dead Queen's Eldest Daughtnr.

Berlin, Jan. 23.-The news of the death of Queen Victoria had been hourly expected in Berlin, and on its arrival special editions of the newspapers sold like wildfire, the announcement being read with silent and respectful sympathy. The fact that Empress Augusta Victoria started for Homberg to be near Dowager Empress Frederick added to the sad circumstances of the occasion.

The German nation fully shares in the feelings of the British people toward the venerable and illustrious sovereign who has just breathed her last.

A sense of gratification is felt by all Germans that Emperor William was present during the last hours of ed by a fearful catastrophe. A THEATER BURNED.

Audience Coolly Walked Out Without a Panic.

E. H. SOTHERN SUFFERED LOSS.

Fire Became Apparent In the Audience Room of the Grand Opera House, at Cincinnati, During a Play-Other Prop erty Also Damaged.

Cincinnati, Jan. 23.-The Grand

Opera House is a total ruin except for its staunch outer walls. A display of coolness perhaps never witnessed before under such trying conditions prevented its loss from being attend by the E. H. Sothern company. The house was packed by a brilliant audience. Many ladies without escorts were present. The first act had been finished, and in the second Mr. Sothern, acting the part of Hamlet, had spoken but a few lines when a slight disturbance was observed in the fourth row of seats from the orchestra, near the center aisle. It was caused by a slight issue of smoke at that point. An usher went down the aisle and quietly asked the people to be seated, saying there was nothing wrong. Mr. Sothern at this point stepped to the front of the stage and also assured the audience that everything was right. To further remove apprehension, Mr. Sothern resumed his part, but before he had spoken two lines the smoke issued in such volumes that there was a spontaneous movement of the people in its vicinity. Without further order or suggestion or advice, the audience left the theater quietly.

Some of the audience were helped onto the stage by some members of the company and thus got out.

It appeared that the fire likely started from the furnace underneath the orchestra. It soon communicated to the stage, and to this fact is owing the losses of the greater portion of the property of the Sothern company. Mr. Sothern estimated his loss at $50,000. His company was compelled to reach the streets clad in their costumes and to lose the greater portion of their personal effects, which were left in the theater.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 23.-Ricen Victoria is dead and Edward VII. reigns. The event took place exietly, upon the anniversary of he death of Queen Victoria's father, Do Duke of Kent.

The end of the queen's earthly mareer came in a simply furnished om in Osborne house. In 1837 she began to rule over England.

Number of Relatives With Her.

Around her were gathered almost every descendent of her line. within view of her dying eyes there hung a portrait of the prince consort. It was he who designed the room and every part of the castle. In scarcely audible words the whiteaired bishop of Winchester prayed beside her, as he had ofen prayed with his sovereign, for he was her apinin at Windsor. With bowed heads the imperious ruler of the German empire and the man who is now king of England, the woman who has succeeded to the title of queen, the rinces and princesses, and those of than royal designation listened the bishop's ceaseless prayer.

The bishop continued his intercession. One of the younger children sked a question in shrill, childish creble and was immediately silenced. The women of this royal family sobbed faintly and the men shuffled measily.

Recognized Son and Nephew.

If was feared that the queen was dying about 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and carriages were sent to Os-borne cottage and the rectory to bring all the princes and princesses and the dehop of Winchester to the bedside. It seemed then very near the end. but, when things looked the worst, the queen had another rally, due to kind Providence, opened her eyes and recognized the Prince of Wales, the princess and Emperor William. She asked to see one of her faithful servants, a member of the household. He hastened to the room, but before he got there the queen had passed into a fitful sleep.

About 4 o'clock Tuesday marked the beginning of the end. Again the family were summoned, and this time the relapse was not followed by recovery

The Prince of Wales was very much frected when the doctors at last informed him that his mother had breethed her last. Emperor William. himself deeply effected, did his best to minister comfort to his sorrowstricken uncle, whose new dignity he was the first to acknowledge.

From all parts of the world there were pouring into Cowes messages of condolence. They come from crowned heads, millionaires, tradesmen and paupers, and were variously addressed to the Prince of Wales and the King of Hagland.

For several weeks the queen had been failing. On Monday week she summoned Lord Roberts and asked him some very searching questions regarding the war in South Africa. On Tuesday week she went for a drive, but was visibly effected. On Wednesday of last week she suffered a paralytic stroke, accompanied by intense physical weakness. It was her first illness in all her 81 years, and she would not admit it. Then her condition grew so serious that. against her wishes, the family were summoned. When they arrived her reason had practically succumbed to paralysis and weakness.

Some Events of Her Last Days.

The events of the last few days, described in the bulletins, are too fresh to need repetition. At the lodge gates the watchers waited nervous-Suddenly along the drive from the house came a horseman, who cried, "The queen is dead," as he dashed through the crowds.

Then down the hillside rushed a myriad of messengers, passing the fateful bulletin from one to another. Soon the surrounding country knew that a king ruled over Great Britain. The local inhabitants walked as if in a dream through the streets of Cowes, but they didn't hesitate to stop to drink the health of the new monarch

When the about 4 p. m. bulletin Tuesday announced that the queen was sinking all the watchers at the rates of Osborne house made up their ninds to remain to the end. The cold was intense, and a few favored ones sought shelter in the royal lodge, just inside, where they waited in absolute silence. The telephone bell rang at about 7:04 p. m., but before a royal servant had time to take the message the chief of the queen's police emerged from the darkness and, with bared head, said:

"Gentlemen, the queen passed away at 6:30."

All present reverently uncovered and then shrill whistles and the ringing of the bells of the bicycles in waiting were the signals for messengers to race to Cowes with the news. In a few moments the place was deserted. Simultaneously mounted messengers, on white horses, dashed from Osborne.

On their arrival at Cowes the correspondents found the news had been known both at East and West Cowes also 15 minutes before it had been announced to those in waiting at the gates of Osborne house. Sorrowing crowds were already in the streets discussing her majesty's death.

Probable Formalities of Proclamation.

At the offices of the lord chamberlain, at St. James' palace; of the city remembrancer, at the Guild hall, and at the college of Heralds, the officials were busy Tuesday, even before the death of the queen was announced, preparing for the formalities which will attend the proclaiming of a new ruler of the United Kingdom and India. All the ancient Gaettes, court circulars and other papers which describe the ceremonial of 1837 had been taken from the libraries, that the officials may familiarize themselves with the forms of pageantry whereby a sovereign is proclaimed. The city remembancer said Tuesday night:

"It will depend on the pleasure of the new monarch to decide how far the ancient customs will be modified to suit the modern methods, but in a country where precedents are so firmly adhered to as England, it may be anticipated tha we shall follow closely on the acts which prevailed when the queen ascended the throne. The privy council, which is a very large body, will meet at once at St. James palace, where the form of proclamation declaring that 'we.' etc., 'with one voice and consent of tongue and heart declare and proclaim the high mighty. Prince Albert Edward.' etc., who, by the death of the monarch, has become our only lawful and rightful liege,' etc.

Give New Title to King.

"This proclamation will give the new title the king may assume, but this is not yet announced to us. The proclamation will then be sent to the Heralds college and the following day the earl marshal, the Garter king at arms, the Heralds pursuivants and other officials, the college members, with the household troops, will proceed from the palace, clad in their splendid surcoats, and proceed to Trafalgar square. There the king-atarms will halt, command silence and read the proclamation. Proceeding District of Columbia appropriation down the Strand to Temple Bar, a halt will again be made, to demand an entrance into the city to proclaim the king. There the lord mayor, sheriffs in their state carriages, will form a great procession, and when the earl marshal's party comes just within the city boundary the proclamation will he read again and the procession will pass down Ludgate hill and Cheapside to the Royal Exchange, where similar ceremonies will close the spectacle."

SADNESS IN GERMANY.

Their Burden Increased by the Illness of the Dead Queen's Eldest Daughtnr.

Berlin, Jan. 23.-The news of the death of Queen Victoria had been hourly expected in Berlin, and on its arrival special editions of the newspapers sold like wildfire, the announcement being read with silent and respectful sympathy. The fact that Empress Augusta Victoria started for Homberg to be near Dowager Empress Frederick added to the sad circumstances of the occasion.

The German nation fully shares in the feelings of the British people toward the venerable and illustrious sovereign who has just breathed her

A sense of gratification is felt by all Germans that Emperor William was present during the last hours of Queen Victoria's life and that the lofty feelings of filial piety which prompted his action have met with such full and unqualined recognition on the part of the British nation.

After the receipt of the news Count Von Eulenburg, the chief court marshal, ordered the flags half masted on all public buildings. Although the hour of the evening was somewhat advanced a number of embassies and legations, including the American, did the same.

Special mourning orders to the Schloss, the army, the court and public departments were issued last evening. These will be published today and go into effect immediately.

Audience Coolly Walked Out Without a Panic.

E. H. SOTHERN SUFFERED LOSS.

Fire Became Apparent In the Audience Room of the Grand Opera House, at Cincinnati, During a Play-Other Prop erty Also Damaged.

Cincinnati, Jan. 23.-The Grand Opera House is a total ruin except for its staunch outer walls. A display of coolness perhaps never witnessec before under such trying conditions prevented its loss from being attend ed by a fearful catastrophe. The play set for the night was "Hamlet," by the E. H. Sothern company. The house was packed by a brilliant audience. Many ladies without escorts were present. The first act had been finished, and in the second Mr. Sothern, acting the part of Hamlet, had spoken but a few lines when a slight disturbance was observed in the fourth row of seats from the orchestra, near the center aisle. It was caused by a slight issue of smoke at that point. An usher went down the aisle and quietly asked the people to be seated, saying there was nothing wrong. Mr. Sothern at this point stepped to the front of the stage and also assured the audience that everything was right. To further remove apprehension, Mr. Sothern resumed his part, but before he had spoken two lines the smoke issued in such volumes that there was a spontaneous movement of the people in its vicinity. Without further order or suggestion or advice, the audience left the theater quietly.

Some of the audience were helped onto the stage by some members of the company and thus got out.

It appeared that the fire likely started from the furnace underneath the orchestra. It soon communicated to the stage, and to this fact is owing the losses of the greater portion of the property of the Sothern company. Mr. Sothern estimated his loss at $50,000. His company was compelled to reach the streets clad in their costumes and to lose the greater portion of their personal effects, which were left in the theater.

It was estimated that the lessees have an interest in the building representing their outlay in fitting it up amounting to $30,000 or $40,000. which is covered by insurance.

The present lessees of the Grand Opera House are Rainforth & Havlin. The building belongs to Mrs. Charles Taft, whose husband is the proprietor of the Times Star. The loss might be estimated at about $200,000.

Probable Formalities of Proclamation.

At the offices of the lord chamberlain, at St. James' palace; of the city remembrancer, at the Guild hall, and at the college of Heralds, the officials were busy Tuesday, even before the death of the queen was announced, preparing for the formalities which will attend the proclaiming of a new ruler of the United Kingdom and India. All the ancient Gaettes, court circulars and other papers which describe the ceremonial of 1837 had been taken from the libraries, that the officials may familiarize themselves with the forms of pageantry whereby a sovereign is proclaimed. The city remembancer said Tuesday night:

"It will depend on the pleasure of e new monarch to decide how far the ancient customs will be modified to suit the modern methods, but in a country where precedents are so firmly adhered to as England, it may be anticipated tha we shall follow closely on the acts which prevailed when the queen ascended the throne. The privy council, which is a very large body, will meet at once at St. James palace, where the form of proclamation declaring that 'we,' etc., 'with one voice and consent of tongue and heart declare and proclaim the high mighty. Prince Albert Edward,' etc., who, by the death of the monarch, has become our only lawful and rightful liege,' etc.

Give New Title to King.

"This proclamation will give the new title the king may assume, but this is not yet announced to us. The proclamation will then be sent to the Heralds college and the following day the earl marshal, the Garter king at arms, the Heralds pursuivants and other officials, the college members, with the household troops, will proceed from the palace, clad in their splendid surcoats, and proceed to Trafalgar square. There the king-atarms will halt, command silence and read the proclamation. Proceeding down the Strand to Temple Bar, a halt will again be made, to demand an entrance into the city to proclaim the king. There the lord mayor, sheriffs in their state carriages, will form breathed her last. Emperor William, a great procession, and when the earl marshal's party comes just within the city boundary the proclamation will be read again and the procession will pass down Ludgate hill and tives on Wednesday, Feb. 13, at 1 p. Cheapside to the Royal Exchange, m., for the purpose of counting the where similar ceremonies will close the spectacle."

EVENTS IN BRIEF.

Before the announcement of the death of the queen the house passed the bills to send to the court of claims the claims of Cramp & Sons, amounting to something over $1,300,000, for alleged damages due to the company on acount of the failure of the government to promptly furnish armor plate and other material used in the construction of the New York, Columbia, Massachusetts and Indiana. The District of Columbia appropriation bill was taken up and some progress was made with it.

Mr. Chandler, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections of the senate, favorably reported a concurent resolution providing that the two houses of congress assemble in the hall of the house of representavote cast for president and vice president of the United States. The president of the senate is to preside over the joint assemblage. The result is to be delivered to him and he is to announce the state of the vote and the persons elected to the two houses. The resolution was adopted.

A THEATER BURNED.

Audience Coolly Walked Out Without a Panic.

E. H. SOTHERN SUFFERED LOSS.

Room of the Grand Opera House, at Cincinnati, During a Play-Other Prop erty Also Damaged.

Cincinnati, Jan. 23.-The Grand Opera House is a total ruin except for its staunch outer walls. A display of coolness perhaps never witnessed before under such trying conditions prevented its loss from being attend ed by a fearful catastrophe. The play set for the night was "Hamlet," by the E. H. Sothern company. The ed his action have met with such full house was packed by a brilliant audience. Many ladies without escorts were present. The first act had been finished, and in the second Mr. Sothern, acting the part of Hamlet, had spoken but a few lines when a slight disturbance was observed in the fourth row of seats from the orchestra, near the center aisle. It was caused by a slight issue of smoke at that point. An usher went down the aisle and quietly asked the people to be seated, saying there was nothing wrong. Mr. Sothern at this point stepped to the front of the stage and also assured the audience that everything was right. To further remove apprehension, Mr. Sothern resumed his part, but before he had spoken two lines the smoke issued in such volumes that there was a spontaneous movement of the people in its vicinity. Without further order or suggestion or advice, the audience left the theater quietly.

> Some of the audience were helped onto the stage by some members of the company and thus got out.

It appeared that the fire likely started from the furnace underneath the orchestra. It soon communicated to the stage, and to this fact is owing the losses of the greater portion of the property of the Sothern com-pany. Mr. Sothern estimated his loss at $50,000. His company was compelled to reach the streets clad in their costumes and to lose the greater portion of their personal effects. which were left in the theater.

It was estimated that the lessees have an interest in the building representing their outlay in fitting it up amounting to $30,000 or $40,000, which is covered by insurance.

A portion of the building was occupied by the Cincinnati gymnasium, which had a costly equipment. Adjoining the rear of the opera house. separated by an all is the large Butler building. The fire entered this at the upper stories, and the roof and two upper floors of that building were practically destroyed. The uppor portion of the Gifts engine house, which adjoins the Butler building, was seriously damaged by the fire.

The present lessees of the Grand Opera House are Rainforth & Havlin. The building belongs to Mrs. Charles Taft, whose husband is the proprietor of the Times Star. loss might be estimated at about $200,000.

The principal losers in the Butler building are the American Engraving company, Achert & Henckel Engraving company, the Bruner Woolen company, S. Rosenthal, printer; Proctor & Collier, advertising; Max Wocher & Son, surgical instruments; Ilsen & Co., music publishers; Rauch & Goldsmith and S. Silver, optician. The loss to the greater number of these is from water and probably will reach $75,000 to $100,000. There was no insurance on the Grand Opera House building.

Across the street from the Butler building and the Gifts engine house is the Palace hotel. It required some to prevent a panic among the was more or less panic when the alrm reached the gymnasium.

The Longest Word.

"Rob." said Tom, "which is the most dangerous word to pronounce in the English language?"

"Don't know, unless it's a swearing word."

"Pooh!" said Tom. "It's 'stumbled." because you are sure to get a tumble between the first and last letter."

"Ha, ha!" said Rob. "Now, I've got one for you. I found it one day in the paper. Which is the longest word in the English language?"

"Incomprehensibility." said Tom promptly.

"No, sir; it's 'smiles,' because there's a whole mile between the first and last letter."

"Ho, ho!" cried Tom, "that's nothing. I know a word that has over three miles between its beginning and ending."

"What's that?" asked Rob faintly. "Beleaguered," said Tom. - Pear-

TRIBUTES OF AMERICA

Congress Shows Respect For Edward VII.: Queen's Memory.

OFFICIAL MESSAGES WERE SENT.

Flag Half-Masted at White House and on Government Buildings-Some Cabinet Officers Praised Late Queen In Interviews-In New York and Other Places

Washington, Jan. 23.-Business in the house was laid aside out of re spect for Queen Victoria's memory. Mr. Hitt, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, while the session was proceeding, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the house of representatives of the United States of America has learned with profound sorrow of the death of her majesty, Queen Victoria, and sympathizes with her people in the loss of their beloved sovereign. That the president be requested to communicate this expression of the sentiment of the house to the government of Great Britain. That as a further mark of respect to the memory of Queen Victoria the house do now adjourn.

The reading of the resolution was listened to with impressive silence. Mr. Hitt stated very briefly this resolution followed the precedents in similar cases. It was, he said, copied almost literally from the resolution adopted upon the occasion of the death of the president of the French republic, and followed the expression adopted upon the death of the czar of Russia. The resolution was unanimously adopted and the house stood adjourned until noon today.

Senate Also Adopted Resolutions.

In the senate, after the executive session, Mr. Allison offered the following resolution in open session:

"That the death of her royal and imperial majesty, Victoria, of noble virtues and great renown, is sincerely deplored by the senate of the United States of America."

The resolution was adopted unanimously.

Later on Mr. Allison then offered the following resolution with reference to that passed earlier in the day upon the death of Queen Victoria:

"That the president pro tem. of the senate cause to be conveyed to the prime minister of Great Britain a suitably engrossed copy of the foregoing resolution."

It was agreed to.

Whether there will be commemorative exercises similar to those held in Washington after the death of the Empress of Austria and the King of Italy, will depend upon the instructions issued from London. In any event, Lord Pauncefote and those about him are withdrawn for some time from participation in the social and official affairs at the capital.

The German embassy shares in the universal sorrow, and there is an added sentiment of bereavement in the fact that Emperor William is the grandson of the dead queen. The German ambassador, Dr. von Holleben, gave expression to his deep grief and paid a tribute of respect and admiration for the noble life and the illustrious reign of the departed queen.

Personal Affliction to Lord Pauncefote.

Lord Pauncefote had expected that the end could not be long deferred, and had been prepared for the sad intelligence that the queen was no more, but it came to him almost as a personal affliction, for it was only a few months ago that he was the guest of the queen at Osborne, at the time of his elevation to the beerage.

Secretary Hay, upon being assured through the physician's certificate, as furnished him by the Associated Press of the denrise of Queen Victoria, promptly cabled the following message to Ambassador Choate at London:

"Department of State, "Jan. 22, 1901.

"Choate, Ambassador, London. "You will express to Lord Lansdowne the profound sorrow of the government and people of the United States at the death of the queen and the deep sympathy we feel with the people of the British empire in their great affliction. (Signed) "John Hay." While the cabinet was in session the president and his advisers were in receipt from time to time of all the news which came from Osborne house, so when the end came later messages of condolence were sent and orders given looking to the half masting of the flags over the executive departments and the carrying out of formalities. The half masting of the national ensign was an unusual tribute to the memory of the deceased sovereign. It is said that this has ruler, but never before in the case of the death of a monarch.

Official Message by President McKinley. President McKinley sent the following message of condolence to King "Telegram sent from Washington, Jan. 22, 1901.

"His Majesty, the King, Osborne House, Isle of Wight.

"I have received with profound sorrow the lamentable tidings of the death of her majesty, the queen. Allow me, Sir, to offer my sincere sympathy and that of the American people in your personal bereavement and in the loss Great Britain has suffered in the death of its venerable and illustrious sovereign, whose noble life and beneficent influence have promoted the peace and won the affection of the world.

"William McKinley." Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock expressed his sympathy as fol-

"The American people will deeply and sincerely sympathize with their kinsmen across the sea in their irreparable loss of a devoted sovereign whose pure and gracious personality and illustrious reign have so abundantly blesed the people of her great dominion, and which have contributed so effectively to Christian civilization in every quarter of the world."

Postmaster General Smith expressed his sympathy in the following statement:

"She has been a model queen and a model woman, and her death will be a source of sorrow throughout the world."

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson

"She has been a good, exemplary, Christian woman, and one of the wisest rulers Great Britain has had." universal and sincere. All the ambassadors, ministers and their suites took early occasion, after receiving word of the queen's death, to call at the British embassy and leave their eards. Lord Pauncefote saw only a few of his most intimate associates, and received from them personal expressions of condolence.

Secretary of State Hay, on being informed of the queen's death, declined to make a statement for publication on the ground that being under obligation to send an official message to the British government on the subject, he did not feel called upon to make a further supplementary private statement.

Attorney General Griggs said: "Hers has been a noble life. Whether she has been greater as a queen or as a woman is hard to say. Her good influence upon society and individual character is beyond estimate or calculation. It is a rare thing that the personal worth of a royal personage equals in public estimation the reputation that attaches to the royal office, but great as has been the glory of her political reign her personal sway over the manners, the morals and the hearts of men and women of all nations has given her a worldwide dominion and brings for her death an extent of profound sorrow and mourning which comprehends the whole civilized world."

Tribute of Secretary Gage.

Secretary Gage said:

"The death of England's well loved queen closes the happiest period in all her country's existence. Victoria was by force of character conspicuous in molding the life and tendencies of the English people during her reign. She will be venerated by them because of her personal qualities, purity of mind and integrity of character. She was endowed with a clear and independent judgment, which early won the profound respect of her official advisers and the love of her countrymen. This respect and love have increased as the years have gone by. A sovereign under the theory of Divine right she was in reality the head of a highly democratic state. Her sympathies were toward the people. The people recognized the fact and repaid her with a generous and loving confidence. To few on earth has it been given so to guide the unfolding destinies of a mighty nation. She will live in the hearts of the people wherever the English tongue is spoken, as a good woman, a wise ruler and a worthy exemplar of all who may be clothed with political responsibility, whether under the democratic or aristocratic forms of government. The greatest laureate of her reign might well have had her @5.10. in mind when he wrote: "'Tis only noble to be good.

'Kind hearts are more than coronets.'"

Respect Shown In New York-Prince of Wales Replied to American Salvationists.

New York, Jan. 23.-The first apparent effect in New York city of the caplegram from England announcing sovereign. consulate went down and announcement was immediately made at the consulate that the office would be closed for the time being for all but the most urgent business.

As the news of the death quickly spread flags over the city began to be lowered. This was particularly true with regard to the financial district, where every business house or building had its bunting ready. Wall street and its adjacent thoroughfares were soon giving silent intimation that one of the world's most notable personages had passed away. Trinity church, at the head of Wall street. took note of the event by the tolling of its bell, and possibly the first of the United States officials to take cognizance of the passing of England's monarch was the sub-treasurer of the United States, who, as soon as he received notice, lowered the flag of the sub-treasury building.

In no part of the city was respect for the memory of Queen Victoria more quickly shown than in the waters of the port of New York. Steamers and sailing vessels flying the British flag were not alone in their manifestations of honor to the memory of the dead queen. United States flags over ferry houses, schooners and tugs in the East and North rivers and lying at docks over on the Jersey shore all brought the emblem down, and by this means the news was conveyed to thousands who were on the lookout for the signal.

Sir Percy Sanderson, the British consul general, upon receipt of the news of the death at once withdrew to his private office and denied himself to all callers.

The flags of Russia, Austria, Mexico, France, Germany, Italy and other nations were half masted at the various foreign consulates and steamship offices on Bowling Green and lower

TRIBUTES OF AMERICA

Congress Shows Respect For Queen's Memory.

OFFICIAL MESSAGES WERE SENT.

Flag Half-Masted at White House and on Government Buildings-Some Cabinet Officers Praised Late Queen In Interviews-In New York and Other Places

Washington, Jan. 23.-Business in the house was laid aside out of re spect for Queen Victoria's memory. tion of the world. Mr. Hitt, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, while the session was proceeding, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the house of representatives of the United States of America has learned with profound sorrow of the death of her majesty, Queen Victoria, and sympathizes with her people in the loss of their beloved sovereign. That the president be requested to communicate this expression of the sentiment of the house to the government of Great Britain. That as a further mark of respect to the memory of Queen Victoria the house do now adjourn.

The reading of the resolution was listened to with impressive silence. Mr. Hitt stated very briefly this resolution followed the precedents in similar cases. It was, he said, copied almost literally from the resolution said: adopted upon the occasion of the death of the president of the French republic, and followed the expression adopted upon the death of the czar of Russia. The resolution was unanimously adopted and the house stood adjourned until noon today.

Senate Also Adopted Resolutions.

In the senate, after the executive session, Mr. Allison offered the following resolution in open session:

"That the death of her royal and imperial majesty, Victoria, of noble virtues and great renown, is sincerely deplored by the senate of the United States of America."

The resolution was adopted unanimously. Later on Mr. Allison then offered the following resolution with reference to that passed earlier in the day upon the death of Queen Victoria:

"That the president pro tem. of the senate cause to be conveyed to the prime minister of Great Britain a suitably engrossed copy of the foregoing resolution."

It was agreed to.

Whether there will be commemorative exercises similar to those held in Washington after the death of the Empress of Austria and the King of Italy, will depend upon the instructions issued from London. In any event, Lord Pauncefote and those about him are withdrawn for some time from participation in the social and official affairs at the capital. The German embassy shares in the universal sorrow, and there is an added sentiment of bereavement in the fact that Emperor William is the grandson of the dead queen. The German ambassador, Dr. von Holleben, gave expression to his deep grief and paid a tribute of respect and admiration for the noble life and the illustrious reign of the departed queen.

Personal Affliction to Lord Pauncefote.

Lord Pauncefote had expected that the end could not be long deferred, and had been prepared for the sad intelligence that the queen was no more, but it came to him almost as a personal affliction, for it was only a few months ago that he was the guest of the queen at Osborne, at the time of his elevation to the Beerage.

Secretary Hay, upon being assured through the physician's certificate, as furnished him by the Associated Press of the denise of Queen Victoria, promptly cabled the following message to Ambassador Choate at London:

"Department of State, "Jan. 22, 1901.

"Choate, Ambassador, London. "You will express to Lord Lansdowne the profound sorrow of the government and people of the United States at the death of the queen and the deep sympathy we feel with the people of the British empire in their great affliction. (Signed) "John Hay." While the cabinet was in session the president and his advisers were in receipt from time to time of all the news which came from Osborne house, so when the end came later messages of condolence were sent and orders given looking to the half masting of the flags over the executive departments and the carrying out of formalities. The half masting of the national ensign was an unusual tribute to the memory of the deceased sovereign. It is said that this has been done rarely on the occasion of the the funeral of some great world's ruler, but never before in the case of the death of a monarch.

Official Message by President McKinley. President McKinley sent the following message of condolence to King Edward VII.:

"Telegram sent from Washington, Jan. 22, 1901.

"His Majesty, the King, Osborne House, Isle of Wight.

"I have received with profound sorrow the lamentable tidings of the death of her majesty, the queen, Allow me, Sir. to offer my sincere sympathy and that of the American people in your personal bereavement and In the loss Great Britain has suffered in the death of its venerable and illustrious sovereign, whose noble life and beneficent influence have promoted the peace and won the affec-

"The American people will deeply and sincerely sympathize with their kinsmen across the sea in their irreparable loss of a devoted sovereign whose pure and gracious personality and illustrious reign have so abundantly blesed the people of her great dominion, and which have contributed so effectively to Christian civilization in every quarter of the world."

Postmaster General Smith express-

ed his sympathy in the following statement:

"She has been a model queen and a model woman, and her death will be a source of sorrow throughout the world."

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson

"She has been a good, exemplary, Christian woman, and one of the wisest rulers Great Britain has had." universal and sincere. All the ambassadors, ministers and their suites took early occasion, after receiving word of the queen's death, to call at the British embassy and leave their eards. Lord Pauncefote saw only a few of his most intimate associates, and received from them personal expressions of condolence.

Secretary of State Hay, on being informed of the queen's death, declined to make a statement for publication on the ground that being under obligation to send an official message to the British government on the subject, he did not feel called upon to make a further supplementary private statement. Attorney General Griggs said:

"Hers has been a noble life. Whether she has been greater as a queen or as a woman is hard to say. Her good influence upon society and individual character is beyond estimate or calculation. It is a rare thing that the personal worth of a royal personage equals in public estimation the reputation that attaches to the royal office, but great as has been the glory of her political reign her personal sway over the manners, the morals and the hearts of men and women of all nations has given her a worldwide dominion and brings for her death an extent of profound sorrow and mourning which comprehends the whole civilized world.

Tribute of Secretary Gage.

Secretary Gage said: "The death of England's well loved queen closes the happiest period in all her country's existence. Victoria was by force of character conspicuous in molding the life and tendencies of the English people during her reign. She will be venerated by them because of her personal qualities, purity of mind and integrity of character. She was endowed with a clear and independent judgment, which early won the profound respect of her official advisers and the love gone by. A sovereign under the theory of Divine right she was in reality the head of a highly divined as the years have limited as the years have li of her countrymen. This respect and ality the head of a highly democratic state. Her sympathies were toward the people. The people recognized the fact and repaid her with a genthe fact and repaid her with a generous and loving confidence. To few on earth has it been given so to guide the unfolding destinies of a mighty nation. She will live in the hearts of the people wherever the English tongue is snoken as a good women. tongue is spoken, as a good woman. a wise ruler and a worthy exemplar of all who may be clothed with political responsibility, whether under the democratic or aristocratic forms of government. The greatest laureate of her reign might well have had her in mind when he wrote:

"'Tis only noble to be good, 'Kind hearts are more than coronets."

As the news of the death quickly spread flags over the city began to be lowered. This was particularly true with regard to the financial district, where every business house or building had its bunting ready. Wall street and its adjacent thoroughfares were soon giving silent intimation that one of the world's most notable personages had passed away. Trinity church, at the head of Wall street. took note of the event by the tolling of its bell, and possibly the first of the United States officials to take cognizance of the passing of England's monarch was the sub-treasurer of the United States, who, as soon as he received notice, lowered the flag of the sub-treasury building.

In no part of the city was respect for the memory of Queen Victoria more quickly shown than in the waters of the port of New York. Steamers and sailing vessels flying the British flag were not alone in their manifestations of honor to the memory of the dead queen. United States flags over ferry houses, schooners and tugs in the East and North rivers and lying at docks over on the Jersey shore all brought the emblem down, and by this means the news was conveyed to thousands who were on the lookout for the signal.

Sir Percy Sanderson, the British consul general, upon receipt of the news of the death at once withdrew to his private office and denied himself to all callers.

The flags of Russia, Austria, Mexico, France, Germany, Italy and other nations were half masted at the various foreign consulates and steamship offices on Bowling Green and lower Broadway.

vate statement. Attorney General Griggs said:

"Hers has been a noble life. Whether she has been greater as a queen or as a woman is hard to say. Her good influence upon society and individual character is beyond estimate or calculation. It is a rare thing that the personal worth of a royal personage equals in public estimation the reputation that attaches to the royal office, but great as has been the glory of her political reign her personal sway over the manners, the morals and the hearts of men and women of all nations has given her a worldwide dominion and brings for her death an extent of profound sorrow and mourning which comprehends the whole civilized world."

Tribute of Secretary Gage.

Secretary Gage said: "The death of England's well loved queen closes the happiest period in all her country's existence. Victoria try roll, 13@14e; cooking butter. 11@12e. was by force of character conspicuous in molding the life and tendencies illustrious reign of the departed of the English people during her queen. reign. She will be venerated by them because of her personal qualities, purity of mind and integrity of character. She was endowed with a clear and independent judgment, which early won the profound respect of her official advisers and the love of her countrymen. This respect and love have increased as the years have gone by. A sovereign under the theory of Divine right she was in reality the head of a highly democratic state. Her sympathies were toward the people. The people recognized the fact and repaid her with a generous and loving confidence. To few on earth has it been given so to guide the unfolding destinies of a mighty nation. She will live in the hearts of the people wherever the English tongue is spoken, as a good woman, a wise ruler and a worthy exemplar of all who may be clothed with political responsibility, whether under the democratic or aristocratic forms of her reign might well have had her in mind when he wrote:

"'Tis only noble to be good, 'Kind hearts are more than coronets."

consulate went down and announcement was immediately made at the consulate that the office would be closed for the time being for all but the most urgent business.

As the news of the death quickly spread flags over the city began to be lowered. This was particularly true with regard to the financial district, where every business house or building had its bunting ready. Wall street and its adjacent thoroughfares were soon giving silent intimation that one of the world's most notable personages had passed away. Trinity church, at the head of Wall street. took note of the event by the tolling of its bell, and possibly the first of the United States officials to take cognizance of the passing of England's monarch was the sub-treasurer of the United States, who, as soon as he received notice, lowered the flag of the sub-treasury building.

In no part of the city was respect for the memory of Queen Victoria more quickly shown than in the waters of the port of New York. Steamers and sailing vessels flying the British flag were not alone in their manifestations of honor to the memory of the dead queen. United States flags over ferry houses, schooners and tugs in the East and North rivers and lying at docks over on the Jersey shore all brought the emblem down, and by this means the news was conveved to thousands who were on the lookout for the signal.

Sir Percy Sanderson, the British consul general, upon receipt of the news of the death at once withdrew to his private office and denied himself to all callers.

The flags of Russia, Austria, Mexico, France, Germany, Italy and other nations were half masted at the various foreign consulates and steamship offices on Bowling Green and lower Broadway.

A FAST BALL PLAYER

HE MAY OR MAY NOT HAVE PLAYED WITH THE ROARERS.

Steve Speed, Who Could Beat His Own Throw to First and Who Could Get Behind the Plate In Time to Catch His Own Pitching.

"The fastest base runner I ever saw," said the fat ex-mascot of the Lightfoot Lilies in comparing baseball of the present with that of the old days, "was little Sammie Salmon of the Lilies. But the fastest base runner I ever heard of was, or wasn't, as the case may have been, Steve Speed, who played, or who didn't play, I don't know which, with the Ringtail Roarers. At any rate, whether he ever played with the Roarers or not, he was certainly the fastest that ever came over the crossways. You don't understand? Well, I'll tell you all about him.

"One afternoon about a month before the last game we ever played with the Ringtail Roarers the boys were all sitting round in the postoffice discussing our chances for the big contest. Captain Slugger Burrows, who was tending postoffice that day, was over in the corner reading the ball news in a Jones County Courier that had accidentally slipped its wrapper before delivery. Suddenly he clutched the paper tightly and sprang to his feet. For heaven's sake, boys, listen to this: 'We have it from a high source,' he began to read breathlessly, 'that the Roarers have unearthed a phenomenal base runner. with whose services they feel confident of wresting the Jones county laurels from the erstwhile invincible Lightfoot Lilies. The newcomer's name is Steve Speed. His extraordinary ability was first discovered while he was in the box one day last week. He stopped an easy grounder and tossed it over to first to catch the runner. The ball had no sooner left his hand than, to his horror, he discovered that first was uncovered. Without a moment's hesitation he made a dive for the bag and succeeded in reaching it just in time to catch the ball that he had thrown but an instant before, thereby scoring a put out and an assist unassisted.'

"'Boys,' said the Slugger, crumpling the paper savagely in his fists, 'to Lily park with you. Practice begins at once. Hustle!'

"Well, sir, that week we practiced. In the morning the boys would all go down to the station and race the trains as they steamed out of town. Afternoons they'd ease up a bit and just indulge in short sprints paced by the town troiley car. At night the daily practice would conclude with a brisk cross country run around the town-Some complaint has been made in ship. The work began to show. At regard to a cesspool on the Calcutta the end of the week we began to have some hopes of beating the Roarers after all. And then came a second copy of The Courier knocking our hopes higher than taxes.

"'The wonderful baseball feat performed by Steve Speed,' the article said, 'which was published exclusively by The Jones County Courier, has been eclipsed by an even more astonishing performance by the same player. We have it from the same high source from which we obtained our former news that Speed has now become so proficient in running that he is able to pitch the ball from the box and by an incredibly quick start reach the plate in time to catch the ball behind the bat. The Roarers have released their catcher.' Wouldn't that hasten your pulse? It did ours.

"And the next week's accounts were even worse. The Courier got straight from their own private high source that this guy Speed was even better than the week before. He was now so super at the game that he not only ran down behind the plate and caught the balls that he pitched, but in case the batter knocked a fly he darted out in the field and caught it himself. The Roarers had, according to The Courier. released their whole outfield. When we read that, Bull Thompson wanted to cancel the game, but the Slugger wouldn't hear of it. 'The Lightfoot Lilies,' he said, 'may be made to look like tarheel thistles, but we won't wither before we're picked.'

"When the big game finally did come off, the Roarers certainly had us on the run. For three innings they piled up runs almost at will. But then we began to get wise. Where was this fast running phenom? Cy Priest was still in the pitcher's box, and the whole outfield seemed to be in their usual places. Perhaps he was sick. The thought gave us courage, and we began to pick hearing will be had Saturday morning up a bit. You all know how we finally the red necktie as he walked out,-Chipulled the game out of the fire in the cago Tribune.

last half of the tenth. That's a mat ter of history now. Well, after it was over the Slugger went up to Cy Priest. "'Say.' he asked, 'where's that hot base runner of yours, Cy?

"'You mean Steve Speed?' replied Cy, with a funny look in his eye. 'Oh we couldn't pay the salary he demanded and had to let him go The last l heard of him he was touring the northwest, playing exhibition games to enormous crowds.'

"Yes, sir; he was the best that ever was-if he was. As I said, I don't really know. Of course The Courier said that they had it from a high source. but then- Well, you know Cy Priest was over six feet."-New York Sun.

Coming Down With a Parachute.

"Coming down from the clouds in a parachute is like a dream," said a circus balloon artist. "Ever dream of falling from a high place? You come down, alight quietly and awake, and you're not hurt. Well, that's the parachute drop over again. No; there is no danger. A parachute can be guided readily on the down trip, but you can't steer a balloon. To guide a parachute out of harm's way a practiced hand can tilt it one way or the other, spill out air and thus work it to where you want to land or to avoid water, trees, chimneys or church spires.

"Circus ascensions are generally toade in the evening. When the sun goes down, the wind goes down. The balloon then shoots into the air, and the parachute drops back on the circus lot or not far away.

"A balloon is made of 4 cent muslin and weighs about 500 pounds. A parachute is made of 8 cent muslin. The rope that secures the parachute is cut with a knife. The aeronaut drops fully 100 feet before the parachute begins to fill. It must fill if you're up high enough. Invariably the fall is head first. When the parachute begins to fill, the descent is less rapid. and finally when the parachute has finally filled it bulges out with a pop. Then the aeronaut climbs on to his trapeze and guides the parachute to a safe landing. In seven cases out of ten you can land back on the lot where you started from."-New York News.

Four Good Smokes Cheap.

"Gimme three nickel cigars," said the man with the red necktie at the restaurant counter. He was quickly supplied.

"Now gimme a good Havana or Key West cigar, about a 15 center."

He carefully lighted the Havana cigar and tucked the nickel cigars in his upper vest pocket.

"You smoke a Havana yourself and keep the nickel cigars for your friends. I suppose?" said the dealer, with a sickly smile.

"No," said the man with the red necktie; "I've got a better scheme than that. I always smoke a 15 cent Havana or Key West cigar after dinner. Then I smoke the nickel cigars afterward. Polite, but Embarrassing.

A pretty little miss of about 14 sumhers nearly broke up a wedding party at Linwood a short while ago. It was about the first wedding that she had ever attended, and she felt the importance of the occasion very much. After the ceremony she noticed that the people went up to the bride and groom and made remarks to them. She supposed that they were words of congratulation or condolence or something of that sort, but her ideas of the proper thing to say under the circumstances were a little vague. Finally she whispered to an old friend of the family who was

"What shall I say when I go up there?" she faltered.

"Oh, just anything to show them that you are glad they are married. Just something complimentary, you know."

In a few minutes the little miss had made her way to where the happy couple were receiving the congratulations. There was quite a crowd around, but she didn't mind them one bit. She marched straight up to the bride and, extending her hand, said:

"I wish you many happy returns of the day."

The remark convulsed every one in hearing, but the little miss left the church with the consciousness that she had observed the proprieties.-Cincinnati Enquirer.

How the Carving Was Done.

"When I was a young man," said a San Francisco artist, "a friend of mine who returned from China brought home a lot of pearl shells beautifully etched or engraved with figures and landscapes on the inside of the shells. I did not marvel so much at the engraving as I did at the cheapness of the shells. I couldn't help thinking that some of the engravings must have taken a day or two to make, and yet they sold for little or nothing, my friend said.

"On my request he made an investigation of the subject and discovered that the Chinese had used the following plan: Instead of graving the picture into the hard shell, an operation that would have been laborious and slow, the Chinese drew the sketch on a little scrap of tea lead and inserted it into the pearl oyster shell when it was tender. The inside of the shell in this manner got an impression of the sketch from the tea lead picture, and as soon as it was sufficiently well printed the Chinese would take the lead out and insert it in another shell, and so on. That's how the carved shells came to be so cheap or at least that was the explanation that was made to me by my friend."

A Defender of Black Snakes.

The reporter was advised not to kill a black snake under any circumstances. An old, honest, reliable man explained this:

"Only a few days ago I saw a black racer whizzing around in a circle, his flaming eyes distended. His attention seemed riveted on something not far away. I advanced, and, to my astonishment, I saw a large rattlesnake coiled up in battle array. The black snake continued his circuits, getting a little nearer to its victim each time. After 10 or 15 minutes the rattlesnake dropped his head on the ground. Almost instantaneously the black snake pounced upon its victim. After securely fastening his teeth in the back of the rattlesnake's head he began his deadly coiling. Within five minutes that rattlesnake was dead. So don't kill a black snake."

The color came in the old gentleman's face as he was relating the above, and he said:

"Boys, black snakes are game, but they won't hurt you, for I had one for a pet for years, and because my old woman woke one night and found the snake in bed she raised an awful fuss and killed it."-Lebanon (Ky.) Enter-

Origin of "Under the Rose."

In Greek mythology the rose was the symbol of silence, as it was said that Cupid, the son of Venus, gave the god of silence a golden rose as a bribe to conceal the amours of the goddess of love. It was, therefore, sculptured on the ceilings of banqueting halls and placed as a sign above the doors of questionable resorts. Guests at feasts were crowned with roses to intimate that their conversations while in their cups were not to be repeated elsewhere.

The phrase obtained currency in the Greek fleet, plotted with Xerxes to betray the cause of the Greeks by surbeing conducted in a small banqueting hall, the roof of which was as usual covered with sculptured roses. The plot, however, was discovered and orders given for the arrest of the traitor. Pausanias endeavored to make his refuge in a temple which possessed the right of asylum. Unwilling to violate the sanctity of the place by forcibly removing him and still more unwilling to allow him to escape, his fellow citizens walled up every entrance and. by one account, left him to die of starvation; by another, killed him by unroofing the building and throwing down the tiles on his head.

Vultures and Rattlesnakes.

When the international boundary commission resurveyed the lines between the United States and Mexico, there were naturalists in the party. Dr. Mearns, who, with his assistants, collected many specimens of birds and mammals, tells of a fight in the air between a California vulture and a rattlesnake which he saw while exploring the Cocopah mountains of Lower Cal-

It was in the early morning. The big bird had seized the snake behind the head and was struggling upward with its writhing, deadly burden. The snake's captor appeared aware that its victim was dangerous. The burden was heavy, as the reptile was nearly five feet long.

The grip of the bird on the snake's pody was not of the best. The snake seemed to be squirming from its captor's talons, at least sufficiently to enable it to strike. Its triangular head was seen to recoil and dart at the mass of feathers

It did this once or twice, and then, with a shriek, the vulture dropped its prey. The bird was probably 500 feet or so above the observers. The astonished men were then treated to a spectacle seldom seen. Few birds but a vulture could accomplish such a feat.

The instant the snake escaped from the bird's clutches it dropped earthward like a shot, and, like a shot, the bird dropped after it, catching it in midair with a grip that caused death. At any rate, the snake ceased to wriggle, and the vulture soared away to a mountain peak to devour its hard earn. ed meal.-Youth's Companion.

She Guessed It.

He was descanting with vigor on the exceptional quality of the dinners that are served at one of the fashionable clubs of Brooklyn at a very low figure for a first class meal on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. Equally toothsome luncheons could be had on other days of the week, but dinners in course only on those days.

"And why on only those three days?" queried the New Yorker, to whom the delights of life in Brooklyn were being rehearsed.

"Wash day, ironing day and the girl's day out," quickly responded one of the ladies of the party. "That's no sort of a conundrum to a woman who has ever had the care of a house. Better try a harder one next time unless you happen to be in a stag party."-New York

His Accent and His Country.

On one occasion during a visit to America Michael Gunn, who assisted Gilbert and Sullivan in bringing out many of their operas, was trying the voices of some candidates for the chorus. One of them sang in a sort of affected Italian broken English. The stage manager interrupted. "Look here," he said, "that accent won't do for sailors or pirates. Give us a little less Mediterranean and a little more Whitechapel."

Here Gunn turned and said: "Of what nationality are you? You don't sound Italian."

The other suddenly dropped his Italian accent and in Irish said, "Shure, Mr. Gunn. I'm from the same country as yourself."

Carrying Out the Rule.

"Some editor who has been giving advice to people on how to live to be old says that one of the main rules to follow is to go away from the table at each meal feeling as if you could eat more."

A FAST BALL PLAYER

HE MAY OR MAY NOT HAVE PLAYED WITH THE ROARERS.

Steve Speed, Who Could Beat His Own Throw to First and Who Could Get Behind the Plate In Time to Catch His Own Pitching.

"The fastest base runner I ever saw." said the fat ex-mascot of the Lightfoot Lilies in comparing baseball of the present with that of the old days, "was little Sammie Salmon of the Lilies. But the fastest base runner I ever heard of was, or wasn't, as the case may have been, Steve Speed, who played, or who didn't play, I don't know which, with the Ringtail Roarers. At any rate, whether he ever played with the Roarers or not, he was certainly the fastest that ever came over the crossways. You don't understand? Well, I'll tell you all about him.

"One afternoon about a month before the last game we ever played with the Ringtail Roarers the boys were all sitting round in the postoffice discussing our chances for the big contest. Captain Slugger Burrows, who was tending postoffice that day, was over in the corner reading the ball news in a Jones County Courier that had accidentally slipped its wrapper before delivery Suddenly he clutched the paper tightly and sprang to his feet. For heaven's sake, boys, listen to this: 'We have it from a high source,' he began to read breathlessly, 'that the Roarers have unearthed a phenomenal base runner. with whose services they feel confident of wresting the Jones county laurels from the erstwhile invincible Lightfoot Lilies. The newcomer's name is Steve Speed. His extraordinary ability was first discovered while he was in the box one day last week. He stopped an easy grounder and tossed it over to first to catch the runner. The ball had no sooner left his hand than, to his horror, be discovered that first was uncovered. Without a moment's hesitation he made a dive for the bag and succeeded in reaching it just in time to catch the ball that he had thrown but an instant before, thereby scoring a put out and an assist unassisted.'

"'Boys,' said the Slugger, crumpling the paper savagely in his fists, 'to Lily park with you. Practice begins at once. Hustle!"

"Well, sir, that week we practiced. In the morning the boys would all go down to the station and race the trains as they steamed out of town. Afternoons they'd ease up a bit and just indulge in short sprints paced by the town trolley car. At night the daily practice would conclude with a brisk cross country run around the town-Some complaint has been made in ship. The work began to show. At regard to a cesspool on the Calcutta the end of the week we began to have some hopes of beating the Roarers after all. And then came a second copy of The Courier knocking our hopes higher than taxes.

'The wonderful baseball feat performed by Steve Speed,' the article said, 'which was published exclusively by The Jones County Courier, has been eclipsed by an even more astonishing performance by the same player. We have it from the same high source from which we obtained our former news that Speed has now become so proficient in running that he is able to pitch the ball from the box and by an incredibly quick start reach the plate in time to catch the ball behind the bat. The Roarers have released their catcher.' Wouldn't that hasten your pulse? It did ours.

"And the next week's accounts were even worse. The Courier got straight from their own private high source that this guy Speed was even better Michael Beck and Mrs. Mary A. than the week before. He was now so super at the game that he not only ran down behind the plate and caught the balls that he pitched, but in case the batter knocked a fly he darted out in the field and caught it himself. The Roarers had, according to The Courier. released their whole outfield. When we read that, Bull Thompson wanted to cancel the game, but the Slugger wouldn't hear of it. 'The Lightfoot Lilies,' he said, 'may be made to look like tarheel thistles, but we won't wither before we're picked.'

"When the big game finally did come off, the Roarers certainly had us on the run. For three innings they piled up runs almost at will. But then we began to get wise. Where was this fast running phenom? Cy Priest was still in the pitcher's box, and the whole outfield seemed to be in their usual places. Perhaps he was sick. The thought gave us courage, and we began to pick hearing will be had Saturday morning up a bit. You all know how we finally pulled the game out of the fire in the last nair or the tenth. That's a mat ter of history now. Well, after it was over the Slugger went up to Cy Priest. "'Say.' he asked. 'where's that hot base runner of yours, Cy?

"'You mean Steve Speed?' replied Cy, with a funny look in his eye. 'Oh we couldn't pay the salary he demanded and had to let him go The last I heard of him he was touring the northwest, playing exhibition games to enormous crowds.'

"Yes, sir; he was the best that ever was-if he was. As I said, I don't really know. Of course The Courier said that they had it from a high source. but then- Well, you know Cy Priest was over six feet."-New York Sun.

Coming Down With a Parachute. "Coming down from the clouds in a parachute is like a dream," said a circus balloon artist. "Ever dream of falling from a high place? You come down, alight quietly and awake, and you're not hurt. Well, that's the parachute drop over again. No; there is no danger. A parachute can be guided readily on the down trip, but you can't steer a balloon. To guide a parachute out of harm's way a practiced hand can tilt it one way or the other, spill out air and thus work it to where you want to land or to avoid water, trees, chimneys or church spires.

"Circus ascensions are generally toade in the evening. When the sun goes down, the wind goes down. The balloon then shoots into the air, and the parachute drops back on the circus lot or not far away. "A balloon is made of 4 cent muslin and weighs about 500 pounds. A parachute is made of 8 cent muslin. The rope that secures the parachute is cut with a knife. The aeronaut drops fully 100 feet before the parachute begins to fill. It must fill if you're up high enough. Invariably the fall is head first. When the parachute begins to fill, the descent is less rapid. and finally when the parachute has finally filled it bulges out with a pop. Then the aeronaut climbs on to his trapeze and guides the parachute to a safe landing. In seven cases out of ten you can land back on the lot where you started from."-New York News.

Polite, but Embarrassing.

A pretty little miss of about 14 sumhers nearly broke up a wedding party at Linwood a short while ago. It was about the first wedding that she had ever attended, and she felt the importance of the occasion very much. After the ceremony she noticed that the people went up to the bride and groom and made remarks to them. She supposed that they were words of congratulation or condolence or something of that sort, but her ideas of the proper thing to say under the circumstances were a little vague. "What shall I say when I go up there?" she faltered.

"Oh, just anything to show them that you are glad they are married. Just something complimentary, you know."

In a few minutes the little miss had made her way to where the happy couple were receiving the congratulations. There was quite a crowd around, but she didn't mind them one bit. She marched straight up to the bride and, extending her hand, said:

How the Carving Was Done.

nati Enquirer.

"When I was a young man," said a San Francisco artist, "a friend of mine who returned from China brought home a lot of pearl shells beautifully etched or engraved with figures and landscapes on the inside of the shells. I did not marvel so much at the engraving as I did at the cheapness of the shells. I couldn't help thinking that some of the engravings must have taken a day or two to make, and yet they sold for little or nothing, my friend said.

"On my request he made an investigation of the subject and discovered that the Chinese had used the following plan: Instead of graving the picture into the hard shell, an operation that would have been laborious and slow, the Chinese drew the sketch on a little scrap of tea lead and inserted it into the pearl oyster shell when it was tender. The inside of the shell in this manner got an impression of the sketch from the tea lead picture, and as soon as it was sufficiently well printed the Chinese would take the lead out and insert it in another shell, and so on. That's how the carved shells came to be so cheap or at least that was the explanation that was made to me by my friend."

A Defender of Black Snakes.

The reporter was advised not to kill a black snake under any circumstances. An old, honest, reliable man explained this:

"Only a few days ago I saw a black racer whizzing around in a circle, his flaming eyes distended. His attention seemed riveted on something not far away. I advanced, and, to my astonishment, I saw a large rattlesnake coiled up in battle array. The black snake continued his circuits, getting a little nearer to its victim each time. After 10 or 15 minutes the rattlesnake dropped his head on the ground. Almost instantaneously the black snake pounced upon its victim. After securely fastening his teeth in the back of the rattlesnake's head he began his deadly coiling. Within five minutes that rattlesnake was dead. So don't kill a black snake."

The color came in the old gentleman's face as he was relating the above, and he said:

"Boys, black snakes are game, but they won't hurt you, for I had one for a pet for years, and because my old woman woke one night and found the snake in bed she raised an awful fuss and killed it."-Lebanon (Ky.) Enter-

Origin of "Under the Rose."

In Greek mythology the rose was the symbol of silence, as it was said that Cupid, the son of Venus, gave the god of silence a golden rose as a bribe to conceal the amours of the goddess of love. It was, therefore, sculptured on the ceilings of banqueting halls and placed as a sign above the doors of questionable resorts. Guests at feasts were crowned with roses to intimate that their conversations while in their cups were not to be repeated elsewhere.

The phrase obtained currency in betray the cause of the Greeks by surbeing conducted in a small banqueting hall, the roof of which was as usual covered with sculptured roses. The plot, however, was discovered and orders given for the arrest of the traitor. Pausanias endeavored to make his refuge in a temple which possessed the right of asylum. Unwilling to violate the sanctity of the place by forcibly removing him and still more unwilling to allow him to escape, his fellow citizens walled up every entrance and, by one account, left him to die of starvation; by another, killed him by unroofing the building and throwing down the tiles on his head.

Vultures and Rattlesnakes.

When the international boundary commission resurveyed the lines between the United States and Mexico. there were naturalists in the party. Dr. Mearns, who, with his assistants. collected many specimens of birds and mammals, tells of a fight in the air between a California vulture and a rattlesnake which he saw while exploring the Cocopah mountains of Lower California.

It was in the early morning. The big bird had seized the snake behind the head and was struggling upward with its writhing, deadly burden. The snake's captor appeared aware that its victim was dangerous. The burden was heavy, as the reptile was nearly five feet long.

The grip of the bird on the snake's body was not of the best. The snake seemed to be squirming from its captor's talons, at least sufficiently to enable it to strike. Its triangular head was seen to recoil and dart at the mass of feathers

It did this once or twice, and then, with a shriek, the vulture dropped its prey. The bird was probably 500 feet or so above the observers. The astonished men were then treated to a spectacle seldom seen. Few birds but a vulture could accomplish such a feat.

The instant the snake escaped from the bird's clutches it dropped earthward like a shot, and, like a shot, the bird dropped after it, catching it in midair with a grip that caused death. At any rate, the snake ceased to wriggle, and the vulture soared away to a mountain peak to devour its hard earned meal.-Youth's Companion.

She Guessed It.

He was descanting with vigor on the exceptional quality of the dinners that are served at one of the fashionable clubs of Brooklyn at a very low figure for a first class meal on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. Equally toothsome luncheons could be had on other days of the week, but dinners in course only on those days.

"And why on only those three days?" queried the New Yorker, to whom the delights of life in Brooklyn were being rehearsed.

"Wash day, ironing day and the girl's ay out," quickly responded one of the ladies of the party. "That's no sort of a conundrum to a woman who has ever had the care of a house. Better try a harder one next time unless you happen to be in a stag party."-New York Times.

His Accent and His Country.

On one occasion during a visit to America Michael Gunn, who assisted Gilbert and Sullivan in bringing out many of their operas, was trying the voices of some candidates for the chorus. One of them sang in a sort of affected Italian broken English. The stage manager interrupted. "Look here," he said, "that accent won't do for sailors or pirates. Give us a little less Mediterranean and a little more Whitechapel."

Here Gunn turned and said: "Of what nationality are you? You don't sound Italian."

The other suddenly dropped his Italian accent and in Irish said. "Shure, Mr. Gunn, I'm from the same country as yourself."

Carrying Out the Rule.

"Some editor who has been giving advice to people on how to live to be old says that one of the main rules to follow is to go away from the table at each meal feeling as if you could eat more."

"Well, say, if that's right, every fellow at our boarding house ought to live to be a hundred!"-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Only a few days ago I saw a black racer whizzing around in a circle, his flaming eyes distended. His attention seemed riveted on something not far away. I advanced, and, to my astonishment, I saw a large rattlesnake coiled up in battle array. The black snake continued his circuits, getting a little nearer to its victim each time. After 10 or 15 minutes the rattlesnake dropped his head on the ground. Almost instantaneously the black snake pounced upon its victim. After securely fastening his teeth in the back of the rattlesnake's head he began his deadly coiling. Within five minutes that rattlesnake was dead. So don't kill a black snake."

The color came in the old gentleman's face as he was relating the above, and he said:

"Boys, black snakes are game, but they won't hurt you, for I had one for a pet for years, and because my old woman woke one night and found the snake in bed she raised an awful fuss and killed it."-Lebanon (Ky.) Enterprise.

Origin of "Under the Rose."

In Greek mythology the rose was the symbol of silence, as it was said that Cupid, the son of Venus, gave the god of silence a golden rose as a bribe to conceal the amours of the goddess of love. It was, therefore, sculptured on the ceilings of banqueting halls and placed as a sign above the doors of questionable resorts. Guests at feasts were crowned with roses to intimate that their conversations while in their cups were not to be repeated elsewhere.

The phrase obtained currency in the benefit of four choice cigars that Greece after Pausanias, the admiral of the Greek fleet, plotted with Xerxes to betray the cause of the Greeks by surrendering the ships, the negotiations hall, the roof of which was as usual ican.

covered with sculptured roses. The plot, however, was discovered and orders given for the arrest of the traitor. Pausanias endeavored to make his refuge in a temple which possessed the right of asylum. Unwilling to violate the sanctity of the place by forcibly removing him and still more unwilling to allow him to escape, his fellow citizens walled up every entrance and. by one account, left him to die of starvation; by another, killed him by unroofing the building and throwing down the tiles on his head.

Vultures and Rattlesnakes.

When the international boundary commission resurveyed the lines between the United States and Mexico. there were naturalists in the party. Dr. Mearns, who, with his assistants. collected many specimens of birds and mammals, tells of a fight in the air between a California vulture and a rattlesnake which he saw while exploring the Cocopah mountains of Lower Cal-

It was in the early morning. The big bird had seized the snake behind the head and was struggling upward with its writhing, deadly burden. The snake's captor appeared aware that its victim was dangerous. The burden was heavy, as the reptile was nearly five feet long.

The grip of the bird on the snake's body was not of the best. The snake seemed to be squirming from its captor's talons, at least sufficiently to enable it to strike. Its triangular head was seen to recoil and dart at the mass of feathers

It did this once or twice, and then, with a shrick, the vulture dropped its prey. The bird was probably 500 feet or so above the observers. The astonished men were then treated to a spectacle seldom seen. Few birds but a vulture could accomplish such a feat.

The instant the snake escaped from the bird's clutches it dropped earthward like a shot, and, like a shot, the bird dropped after it, catching it in midair with a grip that caused death. At any rate, the snake ceased to wriggle, and the vulture soared away to a mountain peak to devour its hard earned meal.-Youth's Companion.

She Guessed It.

He was descanting with vigor on the exceptional quality of the dinners that are served at one of the fashionable clubs of Brooklyn at a very low figure for a first class meal on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. Equally toothsome luncheons could be had on other days of the week, but dinners in course only on those days.

"And why on only those three days?" queried the New Yorker, to whom the delights of life in Brooklyn were being rehearsed.

"Wash day, ironing day and the girl's day out." quickly responded one of the ladies of the party. "That's no sort of a conundrum to a woman who has ever had the care of a house. Better try a harder one next time unless you happen to be in a stag party."-New York Times.

His Accent and His Country.

On one occasion during a visit to America Michael Gunn, who assisted Gilbert and Sullivan in bringing out many of their operas, was trying the voices of some candidates for the chorus. One of them sang in a sort of affected Italian broken English. The stage manager interrupted. "Look here," he said, "that accent won't do for sailors or pirates. Give us a little less Mediterranean and a little more Whitechapel."

Here Gunn turned and said: "Of what nationality are you? You don't sound Italian."

The other suddenly dropped his Italian accent and in Irish said, "Shure, Mr. Gunn, I'm from the same country as yourself."

Carrying Out the Rule.

"Some editor who has been giving advice to people on how to live to be old says that one of the main rules to follow is to go away from the table at each meal feeling as if you could eat more."

"Well, say, if that's right, every fellow at our boarding house ought to live to be a hundred!"-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Strange to say the grand jury, which convenes at Lisbon on next Monday, will not have a case to investigate for violation of the liquor laws by the saloonists of this city. This is something almost without parallel in the history of grand juries, as it is a cold day when witnesses from this city are not called to tell what they know about after hours and on Sundays.

Of course the fact that no witnesses have been subpoenaed does not say that the saloon keepers are not violating the laws, but it goes to show as they formerly did.

A SALOON FIGHT.

TWO DRUNKEN INDIVIDUALS HAD AN ALTERCATION.

They Lit on a Spittoon And Both Received Nasty Cuts.

A fight occurred in an uptown saloon last night in which a local saloonist was pretty badly used up.

A whisky runner named Johnson and a saloon keeper from down town got into an argument over a game of dice, which involved a dollar and the drinks for the house. They didn't argue long, but got down to business in a hurry. The pair clinched, and in the fall both parties got mixed up with the rail along the bar and a number of cuspidores, and each received severe cuts about the head and face. The whisky man was bald, and received a wound about an inch in From all appearances this city is on length on the top of his head, while the local man had a nasty cut over investigation by the grand jury had the left eye. ## THOMAS CROFT WAS IN COMMAND

A St. Clair Township School Teachers Met With Some Resistance From Scholars.

SCHOOL WAS UP IN ARMS

When He Attempted to Chastise One of His Pupils but the Teacher

WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION

Thomas Croft, teacher at the Bell school, in St. Clair township, had a very exciting experience this week, and one he will not soon forget.

The young man had been hired to teach the term, and had not been in charge long when he discovered a disposition on the part of some of the male scholars to take the control out of his hands and run things to suit themselves. Now this is what Mr. Croft draws his salary for, or at least The case of the representative of a part of it, so he made up his mind was any credit due.

Tested for lo these many years.

Backed by the International Typographical Union.

One day this week he had a chance to demonstrate the fact that he was the whole thing, and did not fail to take advantage of the opportunity.

A young man named Birch had committed an offense that merited punishment, and the teacher proceeded to administer the dose in regulation style. But it was not all clear sailing, as the pupil, who is about 13 years of age, had a brother and a number of other friends who were ready for any emergency, and they immediately got into the teacher with the object in view of doing him up.

The youngsters evidently did not know their man, as, when the smoke of battle had cleared away it was discovered that the rebels had met defeat in its most humiliating form.

Young Birch and his brother were two of the most dilapidated looking individuals one would find in a day's travel, while the balance of the crowd were more or less used up. The teacher had used a cudgel and several other implements with good effect, and the lesson was one which

Mr. Croft is still in command, and parents of some of the parties assert they will have the teacher ousted.

OLEOMARGINE CASE

IS NOW BEING HEARD AT CITY HALL.

A Large Audience is Present And the Case is Being Hotly Contested.

The oleomargarine case was called at 1 o'clock this afternoon to the following jury:

Smith Fowler, J. J. Weisend, G. W. Allison, Samuel Dixson, William Kinney, John Kerr, J. Rinehart, Matthew Anderson, M. H. Bough, S. C. Cartwright, J. E. Anderson and A. J. Moon.

When the case was opened Attorney Steele asked that the plea of not guilty be withdrawn and he immediately filed a demurrer to the affidavit, stating that it was not explicit enough in that it did not state of what the coloring consisted and for what purpose it was used.

A long argument followed and Squire McLane overruled the demurrer.

Harry Kratz, who is charged with selling oleomargarine with artificial coloring to Martin Cohen then pleaded not guilty to the charge.

At the time of going to press the case was still on.

COMPANY

W. A. Calhoun Has Filed an Action In Common Pleas Court In Which

HE MAKES SOME STATEMENTS

Claims the Company Changed the Lock on the Door of the Office.

HE ASKS FOR FIVE THOUSAND

Lisbon, Jan. 24.—(Special.)—William A. Calhoun, one of the stockholders of the West End Pottery company, of East Liverpool, entered suit George W. Ashbaugh, William Burgess, Willis E. Cunning, C. C. Ashbaugh and W. H. Burgess, stockholders. Calhoun wants $5,000 damages and salary amounting to $3 a day, dating from April 1, 1899.

In June, 1896, he became a stockholder of the company, with the understanding with the other stockholders that he was to occupy the office of secretary and treasurer, for which he was to get $3 a day. Under this agreement he entered upon his duties and occupied the office until April 1, 1899, when without cause or legal authority he was removed and was succeeded by Charles Ashbaugh, who has since deprived him of his office.

He accuses the stockholders of conniving and planning together to effect a scheme by which they could remove him from office, and when the action was taken it was not at any reguarly called meeting, and was, therefore, null and void.

The defendants are accused of going so far in carrying out their nefarious scheme as to change the lock of the office door and changing the combination on the postoffice box in order to prevent the plaintiff from having access to the papers.

Calhoun also states that the stockholders removed the minute book from the safe and kept it several weeks, and when it was returned a number of loose sheets were missing which contained minutes of several meetings of the stockholders and directors.

It is further claimed that the defendants have refused to declare a dividend, although the pottery has been making money. Calhoun wants an injunction restraining the defendants from preventing him from having access to the books.

In reviewing a few of the things that have happened since the American flag went up on January 1, 1899, and the Spanish flag went down forever, one of the most important to me seems the complete freedom of reof church or state, as had been the time a single Protestant congregation existed in Havana. This was the Baptist church, of which Dr. Diaz is the pastor, and which had managed to secure the concession of a cemetery for the burial of those outside the Catholic faith. Now there are several English speaking Protestant congregations, and chapels or missions are maintained by the Episcopalians, the Congregationalists, the Methodists, the Baptists, the Presbyterians and the Disciples. The Quakers also are established in a modest way.

All these Protestant churches do not content themselves simply with the holding of religious services on Sunday. They do a great deal of practical missionary work, and most of them hold services in Spanish as well as in English. They are not limited to Havana, because the other day in Matanzas I was told that the Methodist Episcopal church there owned its own house of worship, one of the first instances of that kind in the island.

Some political changes are going on, of which it is not necessary to treat now, except to express the belief that, while Cuba will have its own constitution and its own independent government, the moral support and the protection of the United States will never be entirely withdrawn from the new commonwealth, which may be known as the Republic of Cuba. The process of establishing this new commonwealth will be gradual, and its various steps can be followed as they are taken. There is no probability of a sudden and complete withdrawal of the American authority, and whatever ted States always will be assured to its citizens in Cuba.

I write of this, because some letters which have reached me renew inquiries about the prospect for Americans more for their lands than by going the land titles and other matters. may be repeated in the light of the tal will be able to turn it over quicker experience of those Americans who in a part of the island where land have established themselves in the may cost from fifteen to twenty-five island during the last three years. > These observations apply to the settled portions of the island, which, notwithstanding that they are settled, have much good land still uncultivated. The era also has begun of opening up the undeveloped portions of Cuba. The most important of these enterprises is the building of what is known as the Central, or Backbone railway, which will connect Havana with Santiago, at the southeastern end of the island, and which will have branches running to the ports on the north and south coasts. This has been undertaken by Sir William Van Horne, who carried out the project of the Canadian Pacific railway. He is supported by American, English and Canadian capitalists. An enterprise of this kind could be promoted only by men of large means, but in time the men of smaller means will be benefited, for they too will have the chance to acquire lands, and will be assured of the means of getting their products to market. Railroad building is only an incidental feature of the Van Horne project. Sir William told me that the immediate purpose is to open up the undeveloped resources by establishing sugar plantations, fruit farms and the like. London, Jan. 24.-The king-emperor entered his capital at about 2:55 p. m., Wednesday, and proceeded to Marl-

He was attended by Lord Suffield (who has been lord of the bed chamber of the Prince of Wales since 1872), and was escorted by a cap tain's escort of the horse guards. The procedure was exactly as on levee days.

Crepe on Their Left Arm.

By the time the king arrived a great gathering of privy councillors, in evee dress, with crape on their left arms, had taken up positions in the throne room-cabinet ministers, peer commoners, bishops, judges, the lord mayor, etc. including the Duke of York, the Duke of Connaught and other members of the royal family.

Lord Salisbury, Lord Rosebery, A. J. Balfour, the Duke of Devonshire. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal. and a host of the most prominent personages in the land were there to receive the king's formal oath, binding him to govern the kingdom according to its laws and customs, and hear him assume the title of King Edward VII of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of

The ceremony was interesting and according to precedent. The king was in a separate apartment from the privy councillors. To the latter the Duke of Devonshire, lord president of the council, formally communicated the death of Queen Victoria and the succession to the throne of her son, the Prince of Wales. The royal dukes, with certain lords of the council, were then directed to repair to the king's presence to acquaint him with the terms of the lord president's majesty entered the room in which the councillors were assembled and The ford chancellor (Lord Halsbury) then administered the oath of the Afterward the various members of the council took the oath of allegiance and then passed in turn before his majesty, as at a levee, excepting that each paused and kissed the king's hand before pasing out of the chamber. The attendance in the house of commons was large. All the members. dressed in the deepest mourning, stood up as Speaker Gully entered and announced that, by reason of the deep ly lamented decease of her majesty. London, Jan. 24.-The morning papers record with the greatest satisfaction that the king has taken the title of Edward VII. They are filled from end to end with descriptions of yesterday's ceremonies, and accounts of the reception of the news of the death throughout the kingdom and throughout the entire world. King Edward's first speech is also applauded.

The Daily Telegraph says: "It was admirable, resolute, touching and breathing deep sincerity. It does equal honor to the monarch and the man, and will carry a fresh sense of hope and confidence to the country in its trouble."

King Edward will return to Oshorne immediately after the ceremony

Among the innumerable telegrams of sympathy that cordinue pouring in from abroad President McKinley's gives the greatest pleasure. The Daily Chronicle remarks:

Praise For President's Dispatch.

"It is believed that President Mc-Kinley's dispatch was the first to reach the Prince of Wales under his new title, and just as Frederick the Great was the first European sovereign to recognize the independence of the United States, so now the president of the great republic has been the first to acknowledge the kingship the crowd in the neighborhood was of of the great grandson of the monarch against whose authority the American colonists successfully rebelled.

"This is very touching when one remembers the visit of the Prince of Wales to Washington's tomb. Probably it was some remembrance of that incident which made President McKinley hasten to be the first to salute the Prince of Wales as king, and the compliment, we are told, was most keenly appreciated."

The Standard said:

"It is not for mere show that the Americans have received the news of the death of Queen Victoria as a bereavement of their own and commented upon it in terms such as they would employ in the case of an bonored president dying in office."

Respect Shown at Manila.

Manila, Jan. 24.-On account of the death of Queen Victoria General Mac-Arthur has indefinitely postponed the governor general's ball announced for today, and Rear Admiral Remey has postponed the reception scheduled to take place on the flagship Brooklyn tomorrow afternoon.

"PEECOOLAR."

There are wheels within wheels. Selfish men have been known to cry down and under value desirable property, telling blood curdling ghost stories about the same, when the "colored individual in the woodpile" meant that they were simply working a nice little scheme to dispose of their own uncesirable and unsalable property at a enug advance on purchase price.

KILL THE SALOON.

The railroads of the country are determined to do their part in killing the saloon and liquor traffic, and they are adopting a plan which is sensible and practical, namely: Cut off the supply of patrons and the curse will die a natural death. Many railroad companies will now refuse to employ a man addicted to the use of intoxicants, and they will dismiss any employe who is known to enter a saloon or imbibe tanglefoot. Let the good work go on.

TOTAL ABSTAINERS.

tle nip on the side whenever they saw fit." To such poor creatures we extend our pity and sympathy, and simhonor is fully as sacred as is his solwhen the fact becomes known to us: will not pay his honest debts.

CONSPIRACY.

The law is very clear and explicit in this state of Ohio against conspiracy and conspirators, and the punishment may be made a matter of both financial remuneration to the victim thereof, and the imprisonment of the lawbreakers. This office has lately been victimized by conspirators; men who have made false statements respecting the News Review and its standing from the standpoint of unionism, and we have absolute proof that more than one man in this city has threatened candidates with defeat if they dared to get their cards printed at the job office connected with the openly boasted, in the presence of reliable witnesses, that the whole force of what they termed "their association" would be centered against the candidate who would dare defy "their association." Poor creatures. Their malice and hate has placed them in a precarious predicament in the eyes of the law, as they may find to their

THE BLEEDER.

He is known as "the Candidate Worker." We have several of him in 1 25 Columbiana county, and a few of him 10 in East Liverpool. These fellows did a lucrative business in this neck of woods in days gone by. This is a well Memorial Services Will Be Held known fact to many astute politicians. and they have absolute proof against more than one blood-sucking vampire of this class; proof in black and white, and the same will be produced and given to the public at large when the proper time arrives. We have in our possession a letter from a prominent Republican leader which reads lar meeting last night and sent a mesas follows:

"I am glad to note that the News message was as follows: Review is on the trail of ward heelers, bleeders and political robbers. Keep the trail warm. You need but generalize at the present time. Later on I will consult with you personally, as I can give you straight testimony against some of this class-proof which cannot be denied or refuted, and it may be deemed necessary to give the public the full names of the robbers, as they have been carrying matters with a high hand, and it is time for our party to check such infamy."

Some of this testimony will make intensely interesting reading, and we sincerely hope that the Republican leader referred to will spring his sensation before the coming spring primary. This office has absolute proof has already been sounded on the Union Jack draped in mourning. money question, and at least one prominent candidate has saved a snug sum of the needful by and through the medium of the warning given him in the columns of the News Review. Such despicable creatures as these bleeders should be behind prison bars.

FUNNY, ISN'T IT.

And now we have the assurance, from a prominent young business man of this city, that certain individuals in East Liverpool are sending letters to the various candidates for office, warning them not to get their cards printed at the News Review office. Of The News Review aims to have none course these letters have no signabut total abstainers from intoxicants tures attached. Cowards and serpents among its employes. We have had always strike from concealment. We men in our employ who solemnly may be able to pull the fangs of these averred that they did not partake of fellows before the end comes. Further, alcoholic beverages in any manner or we have the assurance from one form, and this they backed up on their who is posted, that certain conspirasacred word of honor. We now under- tors are endeavoring to form a pressstand that some of this class make men's union in this city, obtain a charboast that they "pulled the wool over ter for the same, and bar the News the old man's eyes, and took their lit. Review out. How is that for conspiracy? He laughs best who laughs last. The conspirators are laughing now. We hold them in absolute conply assure them that a man's word of tempt, and bid them open defiance. They have bitten off a heap more than emn oath. We will have no saloon or they can masticate. In the meangambling hell habitues on our force time the News Review job office is crowded with orders. Our city is full we will draw the same line on patrons of business men and merchants who of the house of death, and follow this are lovers of fair play. They hate a up with the statement that we will coward or cowards, and they will not not hold in our employ a man who obey orders issued by such despicable creatures. We fling our union label openly to the breeze. You will find it on our first page every day. No true union man can successfully attack it. We have been doing union work very lately, since these fellows have attacked us, and the unionists getting the work done said: "We want the Typographical union label on our work. We don't want any other label. We don't want what some men call the pressmen's label. We know all about this fuss, and we know, by the action of Typographical union No. 318, concurred in by Trades Council, that 318 covers all the ground necessary for full union products."

Norman McHenry, of Oak street, is News Review; and these men have improving after a week's illness.

TOO MUCH MUD.

The Condition of Pennsylvania Avenue Near Columbian Park is Something Fierce.

The condition of Pennsylvania avenue for a distance of about half a mile near Columbiana park is abominable.

East End is pretty thickly settled along here, and a great majority of the residents work in the city proper, being compelled to take the street cars at various points along the thoroughfare. The street railway company have signs tacked on polls notifying the public that cars stop there, but the average resident takes his life in his hand when he attempts to wade to the center of the street, as the mud is so deep that it is almost impossible to walk through.

It is thought with a small amount of expense the company could build walks along this street where the bis body almost consumed in the signs appear. It has been suggested flames. also that the residents in this vicinity might get together and build cinder paths to the car line.

In fact, almost anything would be better than the present condition.

PENNIES ARE IN GREAT DEMAND

Mint Is Working Hard to Fill the Orders For the Small Coins.

THEY ARE USED IN BIG STORES

One New York Store Recently Asked For One Million Pennies But

FAILED TO GET

One night this week there wasn't a cent in the United States sub-treasury in Wall street-not a penny. There were millions in gold coins and millions in greenbacks, but the pennies were all out—this in face of the fact | Mail and Express. some 45,000,000 pennies every year. The demand for the small coins is so great that 14 big presses are working over time at the mint at Philadelphia in a hopeless attempt to supply it. These presses turn out some 800,000 pennies daily, but that is not enough.

Cashier M. L. Muhleman, of the subtreasury, says that the demand for the coins is so great that he averages the applications and pays to each in proportion to the size of his demand. One department store asked the other day for a cool million of pennies-$10,-000. The store wanted enough to last three months. Others were more conservative and wanted only 5,000. These orders were the extreme.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the rage for cent pieces is the fact that there are more pennies in circulation than of any other coin. Last year the sub-treasury sorted out 110,813 counterfeit pennies from a total of 41,112,900 old ones handled. Of course the new ones are paid out without examination. The old ones were brought in by concerns that wanted them redeemed for money of larger denomination. The big stores that need pennies in their business do not call on the sub-treasury to redeem, but only to replenish their supply. Thus the number secured at the subthey turn over every day in business. It is the "99 cents, reduced from $1," that does it.

During November the sub-treasury redeemed 2,874,000 and found 10,365 of them bad. In the same month, out of 1,895,260 nickels redeemed, only 112 were bad. The most bad pennies taken a total of 157,000. Of all the pennies taken from the picture machines, one per cent are counterfeit.

The number of pennies redeemed furnishes a gauge of business in the particular lines that use them most. Usually a mid-summer month furnishes the most. There were 4,500,000 redeemed last August. Last month the pennies were working hard in the stores and there were but 2,800,000 redeemed.

Each of these men can count $600 in pennies in one day-60,000 Different Creeds Represented pieces, throwing out the bad ones without hesitation. The government furnishes a machine for counting the coins, and this is used in some of the smaller sub-treasuries where the counters are not so expert, but here the hand work is the fastest. This city supplies these coins only for this state, New Jersey, western Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. The city takes most of them. The great west consumes millions more than are supplied directly from the mint to the various sub-treasuries.

It costs the government about onefifth of a cent to make a penny. costs the counterfeiter no more-less, in fact, for he does not need expensive dies-just stamps the copper disks with an ordinary seal press. # EDWARD VII, ENGLAND'S NEW KING.

The Kind of Man Who Comes to the Throne of Great Britain After Many Years of Waiting --- His Gracious and Noble Queen, Alexandra --- Some Facts About the New Heir Apparent.

Idward VII, the new king of Engand and emperor of India, is in his sixteth year. He is well preserved, of avcrage height, of portly build, florid as to complexion and of an even, placid temperament.

In the shadow of the throne he has Myed an almost uneventful life. While waiting for the scepter and royal robes he has had little chance to show what kingly mettle was in him.

The world knows him only as a jolly prince who has done nothing very good nor any great evil. Perhaps the most notable feature of his life thus far has been his fondness for sports. He has raced borses, sailed yachts, shot birds, played cards and gambled more or less, with more or less discretion.

He might have come to the throne as Albert I, starting a new line of kings, prime minister; nurses and doctors by His eldest son, the Duke of York, who becomes the Prince of Wales by his father's accession to the throne, has also an Edward in his long list of names, and his eldest son, who will be king of England some day, if he lives, bas also an Edward in his name. It has been argued that by calling himself Edward VII the new king could revive the line of kingly Edwards, and In time they would exceed in number the Henrys who have sat upon the English throne.

When it was announced that the hopes and wishes of a nation had been fulfilled and that a boy had been born, there was universal gratulation. Prelates and statesmen embraced one another with uncontrolled effusiveness. Cannon from the grounds without thundered the news to all the surrounding districts. The boyhood of the prince was uneventful. His early education was conducted at home under the tutelage of the Rev. H. M. Birch, rector of Prestwich; Mr. Gibbs, barrister at law; the Rev. C. F. Tarver and Mr. H. W. Fisher. He then studied for a session at Edinburgh and later entered Christchurch, Oxford. Here he attended public lectures for a year and afterward resided for three or four terms at Trinity college, Cambridge, for the same purpose.

His earliest appearance in a leading part on any public occasion was in 1859. at the laying of the foundation stone of the Lambeth School of Art at Vauxhall. After the death of his father in December, 1861, he naturally became the most desirable functionary at all ceremonies in which beneficent or charitable undertakings were to be recognized by royal approval. This work has ever since occupied a large share of his time and has always been performed with dignity, tact and patience. Indeed no prince of any country has ever personally exerted himself more queen's subjects desired it, so at last faithfully to render services of this sort the mother, so fond of her own way in to the community. An adoring British aristocracy has applied all sorts of names to the popular heir apparent, which have been taken up by many Americans who have met him and a great many more who have not. Some of these pet names have not been altogether dignified, or even respectful-such as "tum-tum." But the prince has put up with them all good naturedly. But Bertie was for the family alone. The Princess of Wales' wedding ring is set with a beryl, an emerald, a ruby, a turquoise, an iacinth and a second emerald. The initials of these six gems spell "Bertie." It was the princess' idea.

In the summer of 1860 the prince paid a visit to Canada and the United States. Everywhere he was received with boundless enthusiasm. He danced at a ball given in his honor at Wash-Ington, where he was cordially welcomed by President Buchanan.

The United States indeed was prepared to receive him with open arms. At Hamilton, the last place in Canada where he made a halt, he had spoken some kindly words, which awoke general approval here,

It is impossible not to mention two notable things of recent years-the baccarat scandal and the death of the prince's eldest son and his heir, the Duke of Clarence. The card scandal came up in the winter of 1890 while the prince was visiting Mrs. Arthur Wilson at Tranby Croft. Sir William Gordon-Cumming, a cavalry officer of good family, was charged with cheating. It was said that he increased his stake after seeing that the cards were in his favor. > While no one can confidently say what political changes the advent of the new king will make-and it is possible that his rule may materially affect the course of British politics-it is known that he has always had liberal leanings. He detested Beaconsfield; he felt a warm admiration for Gladstone. His most intimate friend among the leading politicians of England is Rosebery. It is already predicted that the new king will work for Rosebery for the premiership.

As for the new queen of England, she is a daughter of the north who at 56 is still beautiful. She is a splendid type of woman and was Princess Alexandra of Denmark prior to her marriage to the Prince of Wales 38 years

A very pretty and romantic story 18 ence fell a victim to the grip. It was told of how the Princess of Denmark became the wife of Prince Albert Edward of Wales. The prince chanced to be whiling away part of a long summer afternoon with two or three con-colonel, produced from his pocket a photograph.

The prince immediately became struck by the beauty and simplicity of the young person in the picture and soon became possessor of it. Within a very short time he had dispatched a confidential emissary to Denmark to carry his suit to the princess. The emissary was struck by the simplicity of the royal personages, but particularly by the grandeur and beauty of the young princess. Because of her simple home training the princess was best fitted for the pomp and honor of her station. She is a brilliant woman, strictly conservative, of commanding presence and stature.

Her character is at once strong and sweet, and she shows a kindly consideration for all who approach her.

As a mother she is ideal. Her children were reared and educated as befits their station, and their discipline is a matter of comment in England. She is a thoroughly practical woman, fond of the best literature and an accom- new king, is a man who has sown his plished musician.

> It is not in temperament alone that the new queen differs from her predecessor, but in every other detail.

For years Alexandra has been noted for her taste in dress an accusation never made of Queen Victoria.

In admirable characteristics Alexandra is not wanting. She is the only one of Queen Victoria's royal daughtersin-law who has been able to get along with her. Even her daughters have found little sympathy in the cool rigidness of the throne. But Alexandra began by determining to like her mothern-law, and she has kept it up.

Queen Victoria declared that she liked the Princess of Wales better than any one of her own family except Beatrice and that she would sooner see her on the throne than any other one that she could mention.

The new Prince of Wales, like the wild oats with a princely and lavish ship stationed at Dartmouth. Here the young prince entered upon his training for the profession to which his after life was to be devoted and showed a great deal of taste for naval studies, applying himself in praiseworthy manner to the intricacies of navigation and to the mysteries of knotting and splicing and the other details of a seaman's education. His elder brother, Albert Victor, the duke of Clarence, died in 1892, and George took his place in the succession. York's training has been altogether naval. In 1883 he became a midshipman on board the Canada, with the North American squadron. In 1885, after passing the examinations with great credit, he was promoted to a lieutenancy. His first command was

PRINCE ALBERT EDWARD OF YORK. that of the gunboat Thrush on the West Indian station, and while occupying that post he opened the Jamaica Industrial exposition in 1890.

Just one year later the young man was raised to the rank of commander, but his actual service was brought to a close by the death of his brother and his own suddenly acquired importance as heir presumptive.

The Duchess of York, his wife, was formerly the pretty Princess May of Teck. The marriage has been very happy, and this royal couple are probably the most democratic of their kind in Great Britain. They have three pretty children, two of whom are princes.

The new Prince of Wales has earned for himself a warm place in British hearts. He is extremely popular, for the English believe him to be thoroughly manly. Only a year ago, when the situation in South Africa developed into a serious war, he declared his eagerness to go and fight the Boers. Only peremptory orders from the queen herself kept him at home.

Oneen's Private Wealth.

London, Jan. 24.-The queen's private wealth yielded an income of about £200,000 yearly. This is ex clusive of £385,000 annually from parliament. Her private income, as gathered from easy available sources, was from the Duchy of Lancaster, upwards of £50,000; from 37,372 acres in the queen's other estates, £25,000: from London realty, supposedly £10.-000; in consols and other securities. between £3,000,000 and £4,000.000. She inherited nearly all the Prince Consort's estate of £600.000 40 years ago, and £500,000 in 1852 from John Camden Neild, the son of a rich jew eler. The queen was a clear-headed business woman and of course had the best financial advice. In 1881, by the advice of Lord Cross, Lord Sydney and Sir Arnold White, she bought property for £78,000, the market value rf which is now reckoned to be £170.-000. She had estates in several German principalities and inherited a beautiful villa at Baden from Princess Hohenlohe. The queen's laces are worth an enormous sum. These and her private jewels, gold plate, pictures, etc., are estimated to value more than a million pounds sterling.
